Intent Is Analyzed:

Shakeup May Coordinate Foreign Policy

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

The results of any such shakeup as the White House — State Department rearrangement depend primarily upon presidential intent, and President Kennedy hasn't said much on that score.

The headline-winning angle of course, is the case of Chester Bowles. It comes as no surprise. Bowles was especially interested in a long-time program involving persuasion of the world to go along with the principles enunciated by the United States, in a period when matters of a more tactical nature raised the question of how much time there will be.

He had devoted considerable time to matters of management, particularly in the field of establishing the authority of ambassadors over intelligence, foreign aid and other work out in the field but management matters did not hold his heart. He got into conflicts with the activists.

Deeper than the Bowles matter, however, ran the impression that foreign policy was being made all over the lot—especially the White House lot—instead of being concentrated under a workable chain of command from the President through the secretary of state.

The President was getting advice before it was evaluated at state. There have been occasions when it appeared that the president had many ears, to each of which someone had access.

The Cuban fiasco seemed to have shaken for a time the ability of the whole administration to plan and to reach decisions. Some confidence was regained. But the muddle recurred when the Communists threw up their retaining wall in Berlin and the Western Allies found themselves unable to respond in concert.

Now the transfers of Walt W. Rostow and Richard N. Goodwin seem to be a regularizing action, designed to shift some of the White House advisory efforts on foreign policy to the State Department where Secretary Dean Rusk can correlate it with regular evaluation processes.

The trouble, of course, has not been attributable to any one cause. It is true that Kennedy, in his first organizational efforts, had to devise some means of giving credit to the numerous lines of thought pervading the Democratic party. Politics played its part in creating the muddle.

But largely overshadowing such considerations is a major fact of American life — a fact which makes it extremely difficult to departmentalize all of the efforts which must go into the conduct of such a war as the one in which the nation is involved.

This fact is that every facet of the nation's life — political, business, financial, social, scientific and military—must play its part, and must do so through the government, and so becomes a part of foreign affairs.

Russia Proposes Ban On All N-Testing; West Disapproves

News In Brief

Three Missing In Plane Crash

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — One of two B47 jet bombers on a routine mission over northern New York crashed and burst into flames Monday night just off Plattsburgh Air Force Base. The second of the six-engined craft landed moments later with two engines disabled.

One flier survived the crash; three were missing.

The pilot of the crashed plane evidently sensed trouble while in this area and decided to land, a spokesman at the base public information office said.

The cause of the crash was not disclosed.

UN Seeks End Of Colonialism

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The U.N. General Assembly Monday night overwhelmingly approved an Asian-African resolution setting up a 17-nation committee to recommend steps for a speedy end to colonialism.

It did so after rejecting Soviet amendments that would have had the assembly proclaim 1962 as "the year of the elimination of colonialism."

The resolution sponsored by 38 Asian-African nations and supported by the United States was approved by a vote of 97 to 0 with four abstentions — Britain, France, South Africa and Spain.

Jury Chosen In Assault Case

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—A jury of nine men and three women was selected Monday to hear testimony in the trial of Mrs. Sarah Iacobino Molter, accused of conspiracy and assault with intent to kill in the dynamite explosion which severely injured her divorced husband May 12.

A co-defendant, Robert C. Kaufman, 30, of Clark's Green, pleaded guilty to the same charges before Lackawanna County Judge

Mrs. Molter pleaded not guilty. Otto P. Robinson.

May Continue Crash Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board said Monday it may resume at Miami Beach next month its inquiry into the Richmond, Va., Imperial Airlines plane crash in which 74 Army recruits and three crew members were killed.

The board said the hearing date has not yet been set. Earlier plans to resume the hearing next Thursday were canceled because of conflict with other cab engagements.

West Sees No Hope For Treaty

GENEVA (AP) — Western officials said Monday night the new Soviet proposal for an uninspected ban on all nuclear weapons tests virtually ends hopes for a test ban treaty at this time.

Western diplomats declared there is no chance whatever that the West will accept the uninspected ban or the basic idea behind it. But the State Department in Washington said the Soviet plan will get careful study.

Dominicans To Seek A Junta

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Conferences between President Joaquin Belaguer and opposition forces on formation of a government neared decision Monday in this troubled country, seeking a new life after years of rule by the Trujillo dynasty.

Discussions reportedly centered on a demand by the conservative National Civic Union, largest of the opposition factions, for a provisional junta to take over executive and legislative powers until general elections are held.

Seek To Void Ford Purchase

DETROIT (AP) — The Justice Department asked U.S. District Court here Monday to strip Ford Motor Co. of the battery and spark plug business it bought last April for $28 million.

In a civil antitrust suit, the government sought to void a deal made by Ford with Electric Autolite Co., Toledo, Ohio, whereby Ford acquired the Autolite trade name; a spark plug plant at Fostoria, Ohio; a battery plant at Owosso, Mich., and much of the Autolite sales personnel.

Strike Expected In Paris Today

PARIS (AP) — A nationwide one-day strike in utilities, transport and other services Tuesday is expected to be the worst in recent years.

About a half-million workers in key industries will strike, seeking higher wages. Their walkout will put many more thousands out of work for the day because of a lack of transport, electricity and other vital services.

GENERAL'S INSPECTION — Maj. Gen. Henry K. Fluck (left) commanding general of the 28th Infantry Division, holds a discussion with First Lt. Robert Bessoir, during a dinner yesterday. Lt. Co. A Is Inspected By Gen. Fluck, Division Commander

MAJ. GEN. Henry K. Fluck, commanding general of the 28th Infantry Division, Pennsylvania Army National Guard, inspected Company A of East Stroudsburg yesterday.

Accompanying Gen. Fluck on the tour were First Lt. Robert Bessoir, company commander; Col. Joseph Giardono, division advisor; Col. Nicholas Kafkalas, chief of staff; Col. Walter W. Unley, 109th commanding officer; Lt. Col. John J. Rametta, executive officer; Lt. Col. Earl J. Palmer, battle group advisor; Maj. John E. McDonald, adjutant of the 109th; Maj. John L. Rhodes, assistant advisor and Warrant Officer John Thompson, division G-4.

A dinner at the Penn-Stroud Hotel preceded the inspection of troops at the Armory.

In addition to Gen. Fluck and accompanying officers at the dinner was John Brislin, of Stroudsburg, a member of the Pennsylvania State Armory Board.

The general toured the Company A armory, inspected the unit's troops, material, vehicles, weapons and records.

The troop inspection came at last night's regular meeting of the company. Gen. Fluck was joined by Col. Walter Unley, commanding officer of 109th Battle Group.

Gen. Fluck has commanded the 28th Infantry Division since 1953. He enlisted in Company C. 110th Infantry Regiment at Somerset, Pa., in 1927 as a private.

He was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in 941 when the 28th Division was activated prior to the Second World War.

Gen. Fluck toured overseas as a Lt. Colonel with the 75th Infantry Division in which he was an infantry battalion officer.

After World War II, with the reorganization of the 28th Division, he was executive officer of the 110th Infantry Regiment and assumed command as a full colonel in 1946.

He held that post until 1952, which included active duty during the Korean conflict.

In 1953, he left active duty and returned to Pennsylvania to reorganize the 28th Infantry Division. At this time he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier General and assigned as assistant division commander.

Gen. Fluck resides at Camp Hill, Pa., with his wife and two children.

This was also the first general inspection of Company A under the new company commander First Lt. Robert Bessoir, of Dalton, near Scranton.

A native of Jersey City, N. J., Lt. Bessoir was graduated from University of Scranton in 1955. He assumed command after Capt. Gerald Shanley of Stroudsburg retired recently.

Lt. Bessoir played basketball at the university where he was named All-Catholic All-American. He was an All-Army basketball champion in 1957.

Bessoir was an ROTC second lieutenant at the university and he joined the officers basic training at Fort Benning, Ga., after graduation. He served with the 7th Infantry Division in Korea.

He returned to the U. S. as commanding officer of Company D, Training Regiment at Fort Dix, N. J.

Lt. Bessoir joined the Penna. National Guard in 1950. He is married and the father of two children, Robert Jr. and Stephen Bradley.

Gov. Rockefeller To Return Home; Search Will Continue

PIRIMAPOEN, New Guinea (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his face drawn and downcast as the first really hopeful clue faded, flew personally to this jungle search camp Monday in an apparent last-ditch effort to find his son.

The governor made the trip in a Catalina flying boat after smoke, which raised hopes when it was spotted Sunday, turned out to be a native fire without connection to 23-year-old Michael. He has been missing since he tried to swim to shore from a capsized boat nine days ago.

The governor's flight over the steamy jungle was his second since his arrival last week and the first time he had landed near the waters in which Michael was last seen.

Gov. Rockefeller talked with various search leaders here and one of them told him: "We regret there's no news of Mike's whereabouts or even if he's alive."

Rockefeller and Michael's twin sister, Mary Rockefeller Strawbridge, are expected to head back to the United States Tuesday, leaving the search to be continued by the Dutch and hundreds of Papuan tribesmen. Their search of the crocodile and snake-infested wilderness is expected to go on for at least another month.

When he returned to Merauke from his flight to Pirimapoen, Rockefeller told newsmen: "I saw nothing that would increase or decrease my hopes."

Lawrence Predicts Bright Pa. Future

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania will have a brilliant future, Gov. Lawrence said Monday, if development officials on local levels are willing to pitch in and work.

The governor presented this optimistic picture in an address opening the first of four regional development conferences.

Lawrence called for close teamwork among local, state, and federal planners, but he put the emphasis on local action. He said:

"If local communities fail, all planning is futile."

He outlined what has already been accomplished in a wide range of programs and also pointed to what needs to be done.

The governor's feelings tended to be on the rosy side. He said, "Today the coordination of state, federal and municipal efforts in Pennsylvania is the best in the history of the Commonwealth."

At another point he said, "... Pennsylvania can lay claim to some of the most far-seeing planning programs in the nation."

The development of water resources was high on the governor's list of needed programs. He also discussed the need to attract new industry, develop tourism and improve hospitals and education.

Emphasizing the need for redevelopment, Governor Lawrence explained:

"Pennsylvania suffers from the fact that she grew up too soon. The towns, the streets, the factories—built at the turn of the century and before—are not the kinds of towns, streets and factories which spell prosperity in the mid-20th century."

Nearly 200 persons attended the conference. About half of them represented business firms and business organizations. There were about 60 federal, state and local government officials and some 25 representatives of labor, education and civic groups.

J. Eric Jones, state deputy secretary of commerce, reviewed what is being done to spur industrial development.

He said state loans totaling over $22 million have been approved so far for 183 projects in 63 communities. This development, he said, will add about 3,400 new industrial jobs.

Another speaker was Harold Williams, assistant director of the Federal Area Redevelopment Administration.

Following the morning session of the conference, Lawrence told a news conference he will announce his selection for a new secretary of Commerce soon.

Rep. Walter Seeks To Halt Closing Of State VA Offices

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration was told Monday it would be a blunder to shut down its contact office in the Pennsylvania state capital.

Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., in a letter to VA Administrator John S. Gleason Jr., again called on the agency to reconsider its plans to shut down 10 contact offices in the state, including the one in Harrisburg.

The 10 Pennsylvania offices are among 161 throughout the nation the VA plans to close Dec. 29.

Gleason, in response to an earlier reconsideration request from Walter, said the contact offices "have fulfilled the purpose for which they were originally activated."

However, Walter wrote back that he still felt all 10 of the Pennsylvania offices should be kept open and made a pointed suggestion in connection with the one at Harrisburg.

"I feel it would be a blunder on the part of the Veterans Administration," Walter wrote, "to close its offices in the Pennsylvania state capital."

Walter said Harrisburg was headquarters of the various veterans organizations in the state and these groups had need for personal contact with a VA representative.

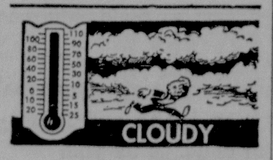

Other Pennsylvania offices involved are at Allentown, Scranton, Pottsville, Shamokin, Reading, Williamsport, York, Johnstown and Uniontown.

Cooperative Outer Space Plan Sought

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The United States outlined a program Monday for cooperation and control in outer space through the United Nations. The Soviet Union ignored it and hinted it would not discuss the problem except on its own terms.

"The time is ripe for certain initial measures to preserve peace in outer space—and extend to all nations the benefits of exploring it," the U.S. delegate, Charles W. Yost, told a U.N. committee on the peaceful uses of outer space.

This was the first meeting held by the committee since the General Assembly expanded its membership from 18 to 24 nations two years ago and directed it to plan an international conference on space science.

The seven Communist members had refused to attend. The Communists, backed by spectacular Soviet advances in outer space, want a reorganization of the committee along lines of the troika—equal representation by Communist, neutralist and Western nations.

The committee's life expires at the end of this year, and Yost said the United States will try to have the assembly renew its mandate so it can start work on U.S. proposals.

The proposals:

1. Acknowledge that international law and the U.N. charter extend to outer space; recognize that all celestial bodies are open to exploration by all countries and "not subject to national appropriation."

2. Set up a central registry office through the United Nations to record all space launchings and satellites. The information would be forwarded to the office by member governments and be available to other nations on request.

3. Share the information from weather satellites to improve forecasting techniques through the World Meteorological Organization, a U.N. affiliate. Yost called this one of the "practical applications of outer space technology."

4. Study the use of earth satellites to improve communications, with stress on helping underdeveloped nations.

STEVENSON AND FRONDIZI MEET — U. S. Ambassador to United Nations Adlai Stevenson, right, and Argentina's President Arturo Frondizi, left, exchange greetings as they meet in Port of Spain, Trinidad, Nov. 26. Stevenson, who flew to Trinidad for the meeting, discussed Cuba and western hemisphere problems with Frondizi.

Offer Seen As Softener For Disapproval Of Big N-Blasts

MOSCOW (AP)—With its own current nuclear tests completed, the Soviet Union proposed Monday that the three powers meeting in Geneva Tuesday agree to ban all nuclear testing. France was asked to join the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in the agreement.

The proposal clearly had, among other aims, that of meeting some of the storm of world disapproval that blew up when the Soviet Union began testing in September and climaxed the explosions with a monster blast of a 50-megaton bomb Oct. 30.

Western sources said the new Soviet offer was unacceptable because it again lacked adequate controls.

The proposal was contained in two documents handed out to correspondents called to the Foreign Office this cold and snowy November afternoon.

One was the text of a suggested agreement.

The plan would put an immediate total ban on underground testing such as is carried on by the United States. It called for suspending such tests until a workable system of detection could be developed.

As for testing bombs in the air, under water and in space, the Soviet Union said the various countries had adequate facilities for detecting such tests now and no inspection would be necessary.

A similar proposal governing atmospheric testing was made by President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Sept. 3 with a similar explanation that inspection was not necessary.

The Kennedy-Macmillan proposal was made after the Soviet Union abruptly broke a three-power moratorium by resuming nuclear tests. The tests were conducted in the air and under the sea.

Premier Khrushchev rejected the London-Washington plan and called instead for general and complete disarmament. The West has rejected this approach as unrealistic.

Noting the Kennedy-Macmillan proposal, the Soviet statement went on to say that its own plan 'would facilitate achievement of general and complete disarmament."

Declaring that France, as the fourth nuclear power, should be brought to the Geneva negotiations, the Soviet statement said: "It is high time to put an end to the double game of the Western powers, when some North Atlantic Treaty Organization members negotiate on a test ban while others, with the tacit approval of their allies, continue to explode nuclear bombs, to perfect these weapons, strengthening the military potential of the NATO bloc."

Publication of the documents on the eve of the reopening of the Geneva conference appeared to be a propaganda move designed to throw the burden upon the United States to explain to the world why it continued testing.

Moreover, it again encouraged public discussion of the Soviet proposal to disarm now and inspect later. The West has steadfastly refused to disarm without being sure that the Soviet Union also is disarming.

The nature of the documents, blaming the West for failure of nuclear talks, fortified a growing belief among Western diplomats here that the immediate future period of relations with the Soviet Union is going to be tough.

Bowles Is Named As Special Representative To Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Monday that Chester Bowles has accepted a new and important diplomatic post especially tailored for him.

The announcement ended reports that Bowles had decided to quit after being replaced as No. 2 man in the State Department.

President Kennedy, who made a series of major changes in the White House-State Department foreign policy command over the weekend, called Bowles in for a talk Monday afternoon.

The President's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, then announced Bowles had accepted appointment as Kennedys "special representative and adviser on African, Asian, and Latin-American affairs with particular emphasis on the problems of the new and developing countries."

Bowles, who has held the title of undersecretary of state, will undertake special missions for the President in these areas, Salinger said.

"The President is delighted to have Mr. Bowles devoting his full time and attention to these new and greater responsibilities in an area he considers second to none in importance," Salinger added.

Salinger said Bowles will report directly to Kennedy and to Secretary of State Dean Rusk on "long-range planning and policy in this area and on the improvement of our operation and representation in the countries involved."

Bowles will hold the rank of ambassador but Salinger described the job as a brand-new one and not comparable to the roving ambassadorship formerly held by W. Averall Harriman.

Harriman, one of the 10 officials receiving new assignments in the biggest shakeup of the Kennedy administration thus far, becomes an assistant secretary of state.

No salary for Bowles has been set, but Salinger said it would be "commensurate with the importance of his post." It was reported that Bowles would receive an increase over his $22,500 pay as undersecretary and his rank on the diplomatic ladder would rise.

White House sources emphasized that Bowles would be able to devote full time to the new job. Bowles was known to have little liking for the detailed chores connected with the day-to-day operations for which the undersecretary is responsible.

Seven Bears Reported Shot On Opening Day Of Season

HUNTERS reported yesterday to The Daily Record the killing of seven bears in the county. It was the first day of the 1961 bear season.

Four of the seven were killed in Barrett Township. They were shot by Wayne Miller, Canadensis; James Caprioli, Canadensis; James Price, Tannersville, and Phillips Rogers, Cresco.

The other three were killed by Raymond Cobb, Ambler; Joseph W. Shosh, Bethlehem, and Ralph Meisse, Sciota.

Miller shot a female that dressed at 188 pounds. His kill was early in the morning.

Caprioli's, also a female, was 184 pounds dressed. Price shot a male, at approximately 4 p. m. It dressed out at 116 pounds. Rogers shot his at 2:45 p. m. It was a male and dressed out at 130 pounds.

Shosh's kill was the biggest reported. He shot a 400-pound male while hunting in Tunkhannock Township.

Ralph Meisse shot his male near Reeders. It tipped the scales at 230 pounds.

Cobb downed his, a 350-pound male, near Kresgeville.

Ach Mon! I Need Bagpipe

By ALICE HASTINGS

BIG ED CURVEY, a six-foot junior at the East Stroudsburg State College, is mightily disturbed these days. "I'm fast, I'm told, but how long would it take, say Gillespie, to learn to play a bagpipe?"

Curvey has the leading male role in ESSC's first drama of the season, "The Hasty Heart," which opens in the college auditorium Dec. 7. He portrays Sergeant Lachlen McLachlen of Her Majesty's Cameron Highlanders, and as such he is decked out in full Scottish regimentals.

"A kilt I have, brogues, belt, spats, side-cap, even a sporran (a change purse) but no bagpipe!" Curvey wails. "The thing of it is that I have to blow the thing in the play."

He admits that he has blown a pipe long ago when "I was a brat and a Scottish gentleman lived down the street. But I never played an air—and it was a long time ago!"

Wants More Control

Could it be that the actor is "less windy" now than then?

"Naw . . . It's just that I want more control. I want it to sound like something. Well . . . like a bagpipe!"

Another member of the cast reports that to help get the "Sergeant" in the proper mood one night, a prop girl whipped up a "haggis" for him to munch.

It was all right," the guest of honor muttered. "But I'll take a hamburger."

When told that a haggis, a real type Scots one, is a pudding made of the heart, lungs and liver of a sheep, mixed with suet and pudding and boiled in the animal's stomach, Curvey said, "I don't think this one was all of that. And I'll take a pizza."

If a bagpipe is available for loan in the Stroudsburg area, the college dramatics society, which is producing the play, and Professor Joseph Brennan who is directing it, will be most appreciative. Telephone the college at any time.

Actually, Brennan does not think the situation is as upsetting as does his leading man. "Lachlen, or rather Curvey," he says kindly, "worries. Who can tell a squawking bagpipe from a playing one? He'll be able to blow up a tune in a couple hours."

Art Student Is New Miss Phila.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A Harrisburg art student is this year's Miss Philadelphia.

She is 21-year-old Marlyn Sobel, a 5 foot 7 inch, 128-pound painter and sculptor, who topped the other contestants in the event sponsored by the Germantown Optimists club. She won out over 19-year-old Jeanne Sule, of Philadelphia, and 21-year-old Nancy Carol Rosar, a graduate student at Penn.

Miss Sobel won the top honor by exhibiting two of her paintings and a sculpture.

Salvation Army Kettles Make Appearances Here

AROUND the world, church bells are ringing out the familiar Christmas message of peace on earth, good will toward men.

The Salvation Army joins this carol of the bells with its own special message. On street corners everywhere, members of The Salvation Army stand beside bright red kettles, ringing bells to remind people that it is time to share with others.

Salvation Army workers first used this unique way of collecting for the needy on San Francisco's waterfront in 1894. The empty soup kettle, the smiling bell ringer, and the sign urging those passing by to "keep the pot boiling" have now become a familiar sight around the world.

Early kettles in Finland shone with flickering candles in the dark streets, and in Japan the coins dropped in to the kettles bought baskets of rice cakes for children's festive days.

The silver and red kettles of Belgium yield up toys for little ones on St. Nicholas Day.

In British Guiana and Brazil workers brave intense heat of tropical summer to ring their kettle bells.

Into the kettles everywhere today go the gifts of busy Christmas shoppers. By adding the red kettle to their Christmas list, many reach a circle far beyond their own family and friends.

Their.. gifts reach hospital wards, the homes for the aged, lonely military outposts, prison cells, the hungry, the homeless and the forgotten. Because of the red kettles, those of the wider circle hear once again the Christmas message of Good Will Toward Men.

CHRISTMAS KETTLES — The Salvation Army has placed several Christmas Kettles around the area to aid the needy this Christmas. Making donations are, left to right, Clifford Cramer and Thomas Kistler. 7th Flee Ready

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Vice Adm. William A. Schoech said Monday his 125-ship U.S. 7th Fleet "is always ready to handle any job our government may assign us" but it might have to be augmented in case of a large, simultaneous threat in the Formosa Strait and to South Viet Nam.

Schoech, paying his first visit to Formosa since taking command of the 7th Fleet, said the fleet "has remained at about the same size for the past year, but we have been constantly modernizing it."

Seat belts can reduce severe injuries by one-third a year!

And, if every car owner in America had seat belts in his car and used them, we could reduce auto deaths by 5,000 a year!

The picture shows how a seat belt can make the critical difference between health and injury—or life and death—for your child. Or for you.

The distance between the child's head and the dash, windshield or car roof is the critical distance for him every time he rides in the car. A sudden panic stop—even when the car is going slowly—or a collision can hurdle him through that short distance with brutal force . . . unless he is held in his seat by a seat belt like the boy in the picture.

Remember: Drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease! Seat belts can save more of these children than any method!

So drive with loving care, and protect your loved ones, and yourself, with seat belts.

Refunds Due To Some Groups

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Blue Cross says it will refund $725,319 to 652 member group plans soon. The organization said yesterday the refunds are being made under a merit-rating which went into effect for larger groups in August, 1960. More than 800 other groups won't get refunds for this checking period, Blue Cross said.

The companies getting the refunds have a choice of taking the cash at once or applying the money against future charges.

The smallest refund is $7, the biggest $35,000.

Exchange Says 'Boost Eastburg'

"BOOST East Stroudsburg" was the theme of the East Stroudsburg Exchange meeting last night in the East Stroudsburg Lutheran Church.

During the program mayor-elect Thomas Kistler, Leon Zacher and Francis Shinn spoke.

Kistler pointed out the many good things in the borough — schools, churches, college, stores and industry. He also added the new highway will be an advantage to the borough.

He said that several meetings have been planned between officials from Stroud Township, mayor-elect Joseph Small of Stroudsburg, and himself.

These meetings will cover possibilities of mutual cooperation to benefit the three municipalities, he said.

Kistler spoke of the inconvenience caused by the tearing up of the 30 miles of streets in the borough for the installation of the sewerage system. He pointed out, however that this inconvenience was progress.

Leon Zacher spoke briefly of the plans the merchants of the borough have to improve the town.

Shinn talked on the theme of "East Stroudsburg As An Outsider Sees It". He made several comments on things to be improved and added comment on things that have been accomplished to make the borough more attractive.

Dr. Thomas J. Bretiwieser, president of the East Stroudsburg National Bank, was presented with an award from the club. The award was for the recent modernization made on the bank and its property.

In other business, John Devivo was introduced to the club as the "Youth of the Month."

State Archivist Surveys

FRANK EVANS, State Archivist of Pennsylvania, is on campus at the East Stroudsburg State College today and tomorrow. He was invited to survey college records and resources in order to recommend proper procedures and necessary facilities for the establishment of official college archives.

According to Dr. Alfred D. Sumberg, professor of social studies at ESSC, "We sorely need a repository for the records valuable in understanding the history of our college."

Evans was invited to the local campus by president LeRoy J. Koehler who conceives of ESSC archives as "implementing one aspect of our new Pennsylvania History and Culture Program which we are trying to get off the ground here."

Evans is accompanied by Irwin Richman, assistant historian of the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

Eastburg Post Office Selected

POSTMASTER Norman Gregory, East Stroudsburg, said last night that East Stroudsburg has been selected for a premiere playing of the new 14-minute "Shop and Mail Early" record.

The record was made for the Christmas program by the Post Office Department's "Singing Mailmen". It will be played over WVPO radio station, Stroudsburg.

The group is composed of 25 letter carriers and clerks employed by the postal department.

Joint Statement

Postmasters Gregory and Fred H. Rhodes of Stroudsburg, said that they expect the Christmas mail load to exceed 750,000 pieces for each post office.

They added, "We would like to emphasize the importance of mailing early so that letters, cards and packages will arrive at their destination on or before Christmas.

"To help in this operation we urge our customers to make use of the labels — Local and Out of Town" they said.

The labels should be placed on letters or cards after being sorted by the individual customer. The labels when placed on the correct bundle, will cut down the time consumed in sorting and delivering the mail.

Rev. Sinclair Will Speak At Local Presbyterian Fete

WEDNESDAY at 6:15 p.m. a Family Night Supper will be held at the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg. The guest speaker will be Rev. John H. Sinclair, secretary for Latin America for the United Presbyterian Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations.

Rev. John H. Sinclair

Mr. Sinclair will speak on "The Church in Latin America" and will also discuss the rapid social changes which are taking place in this whole area.

Mr. Sinclair is tht son of Mrs. John P. Sinclair, who lives in Stroudsburg. Mr. Sinclair did his under-graduate work at Baker University and graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary with both the Bachelor of Divinity and Master of Theology degrees.

8 Years In Venezuela

Upon completing his theological training he went to Venezuela where he served for eight years in the ministry to college students and agricultural missionary work.

Following his service in Venezuela he was appointed to serve in Chile where for four years he was active in evangelism and pastoral work.

He served as Presbytery Executive for the Presbytery of Chile and visited churches throughout the country.

New Position

In February of this year he returned to the United States to his new position which makes him responsible for the administration of United Presbyterian missionary work throughout all Latin America. Several months of the year he travels through the various countries in that hemisphere.

Mr. Sinclair is married and is the father of three children.

The supper will begin promptly at 6:15. The adult program will begin at 7:15. The program has been arranged by the Women's Association as their annual Thank Offering Service.

The Men's Council is also jointly sponsoring the meeting. During the adult program the Young Adults Class will hold special sessions for the preschool children and tht first through sixth graders. Reservations for the supper should be made with the Church Office, HA 1-7751, by Wednesday noon.

2 Arrested For Game Violations

DISTRICT Game Protector John Spencer reported that two men were arrested about 2 a.m. for violations of the game laws.

Stephen W. Cummings, 22, of Rt. 1, Macclesfield, N.C., was arrested for attempting to kill a deer in closed season and for carrying a loaded rifle in his car. He had a hearing before Justice of the Peace Clifford Bush and was fined $100 and $9 costs on the first charge and $25 and $9 costs on the second charge.

Fred A. Ashcraft, 30, Mt. Pocono, was arrested and charged with attempting to kill a deer in closed season. He was fined $100 and $9 costs in a hearing before Justice of the Peace Bush.

Both men were remanded to the Monroe County Jail until the fines and costs were paid this morning.

No Injuries In Accident

ROSETO — Cars driven by Jess F. Haynes, Dreher Ave., Stroudsburg, and Miss Angeline Cascioli, Liberty St., Roseto, collided Saturday at Columbus and Roseto Avenues, Roseto. No one was hurt.

Chief of Police Anthony Pullo said Haynes was traveling south on Route 191 and failed to stop at a stop sign at the intersection. The Cascioli car was traveling east on Columbus Ave.

Haynes will be charged with failing to stop at a sop sign. Total damage was estimated at $800. Both vehicles were towed from the scene.

Ministers To Sponsor Bloodmobile

THE East Stroudsburg Methodist Church will be the setting tomorrow afternoon for a scheduled visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile, under the auspices of the Monroe County Chapter. This visit is being sponsored by the Monroe County Ministerium, under the leadership of the Rev. Harold C. Eaton.

Potential donors are requested to appear at the church between the hours of 10:45 a.m. and 4:45 p.m., at which time the administrative personnel will be on hand to get them through the process speedily.

Due to an error on the "sandwich" signs displayed over the weekend, some misconception has arisen as to the day of the visit. Tomorrow, Wednesday, is the correct day.

In order to maintain its priority in the Red Cross Blood Program, Monroe County must make its assigned quota at this visit. Donations have been falling off seriously at previous visits, and a good turnout is specifically needed tomorrow.

Process of Donating

The process of donating the blood is medically supervised by qualified doctors and registered nurses all the way through. It is a simple procedure. First, the donor is asked pertinent information by the registrars, mainly for their own protection. Then he is checked for temperature, pulse, blood pressure and hemoglobin content.

If any of these factors are not up to par, the donor is rejected for the obvious protection of himself and the ultimate recipient of the blood he would donate.

Following the examination, the donor is permitted to give the blood under the watchful eye of a doctor and a nurse. The blood-giving, itself, is painless and harmless; sometimes it is directly beneficial to the donor.

Prospective donors are advised to eat light food before donating blood. Heavy, greasy food and starches are to be avoided. Light refreshment will be furnished after the donor gives his blood.

There is no appointment necessary for the visit of the Bloodmobile. Those who wish to donate blood are urged to appear at any time during the hours mentioned and they will be more than welcome.

By maintaining its priority, Monroe County Chapter, American Red Cross, can assure every resident of the county blood any time it is needed, no matter where the recipient may be at the time. There is never any charge by the Red Cross for blood distributed, although the administering hospitals may charge for their services in connection with a transfusion.

Urged To Support

All Monroe Countains are urged to support the Bloodmobile for their own benefit as well as that of their neighbor. Of course, visitors in the area who are not residents here will also be more than welcome to help bolster a sagging quota.

Youth Kills Self

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A teenage boy who had taken some change from his father's pants pocket shot himself to death Sunday night and left a note telling his parents: "You will be able to live without a thief in the house."

Alfred B. Cerf told police there had been a family talk Sunday about some change taken from his pocket by his son Geoffrey, 6. The father said it totaled less than a dollar.

Advisor In Eastburg Is Honored

THE senior class of the East Stroudsburg Area Senior High School honored their advisor, Harold Lee, at a special assembly recently.

The honor came as a surprise to Lee. During the program, officers of the class, Earl Metzgar, Brian Farris, John DeVivo and Barbara Albert, were on the auditorium stage. They requested Lee to the platform and class president Metzgar praised the work of the advisor.

Metzgar said "as in all organizations the hardest workers are seldom heard from or about, such a worker is our senior class advisor—Mr. Lee.

Lee's work at the school covers many activities including that of instructing.

"Examples of Mr. Lee's efforts," Metzgar said "can be found in his work at the refreshment stand during the football season . . . his work during the basketball season in the booth located in the gym lobby . . . and there are many other jobs such as senior commencement announcements, fund raising and others that Mr. Lee willing contributes his time and efforts."

"On behalf of the present senior class and others who have gone before, I, as president of the class would like to thank you and present this gift as a token of our appreciation," Metzgar said in concluding his talk.

Lee thanked the class for the unexpected action and gift.

School Is Deeded To Mt. Pocono

MOUNT POCONO — At a special meeting of borough council and the school board, the Mount Pocono School Building was deeded to the borough.

The property includes the building and the playground in back of the school.

The borough plans to continue to maintain the playground for the children of the borough.

Plans for the use of the building are not definite but tentative provisions call for the building to be used as the municipal building and community functions.

Monroe Medical Society Endorses TB Seal Drive

THE Monroe County Medical Society yesterday endorsed the annual Christmas Seal sale of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society, which is currently underway.

In a letter to Mrs. Estelle Fleming, TB society secretary, Dr. John Martucci, president of the medical group, wrote:

"Both as an individual and as president of the Monroe County Medical Society, I wish to thank your organization for the great work which it has done in the past year and preceding years. I want to do this especially in view of the fact that you are now conducting your annual Christmas Seal campaign in order to raise funds for use in the county for the coming year of 1962.

"I wish to call attention to the fact that a total of 5,353 chest X-Ray examinations were done in this county during the past year. These included X-Rays of the general public, food handlers, and hospital admissions. I think it should also be added that in addition to discovering unknown cases of tuberculosis that we were able to find other disease which involved the heart, cancer, and other related diseases which might be picked up as a result of chest X-Rays.

"There was a considerable amount of tuberculin testing which was done primarily in the schools and also at the Monroe County Nursing Home and other privately owned nursing homes throughout the county.

"Your work also included health education in tuberculosis which included dissemination of pamphlets to teachers and students, film strips for teaching, and much information in the radio and newspaper media so as to inform the public on this subject.

"I have also noted that in your annual report, that at least 84 per cent of the funds collected in this county were spent in this county for the various services which I have discussed in brief above. I wish to assure you that the medical society and its members will continue to support the Monroe County Tuberculosis Society to the fullest extent as we have done in past years and wish to endorse and heartly thank you for the fine work which the Society has accomplished in our county."

Care With Firearms

Although hunting is a remarkably safe sport, it nevertheless claims the lives of hundreds of persons every year.

Firearm accidents of all types in the United States take an annual toll of about 2,200 lives or 1.3 per 100,000 population. And almost 40 percent of those deaths occur in the three-month period from October through December, the statisticians claim.

The greatest number of firearm deaths falls in November when hunting activities are at a maximum. For example, the statisticians said that in 1959 fatal injuries from firearm accidents during November exceeded the annual average by about 80 percent.

The tragedy of this lies both in the number of persons killed — although it is relatively low considering the great many who do go hunting — and in the fact that many of the accidents need not have occurred.

In spite of the fact that little progress has been made during the past decade in reducing the mortality from firearm accidents in the country, "many lives could be saved through the exercise of greater caution," the statisticians said.

Numerous deaths from firearms occur because weapons are carelessly pointed at a person. Other major reasons, according to the statisticians, are that individuals shoot before they are certain of their target, and that safety catches are not always kept on guns until they are ready to be fired.

In an independent survey the National Rifle Association found that in 45 percent of the accidents reported, the age of the shooter was under 20 years, and that 72 percent of the shooters had at least three years of hunting experience.

In over one third of the accidents where the firearm was discharged by intention, the victim was out of sight of the shooter. In these cases, also, the victim usually was wearing drab colored clothing and the cover was quite often dense.

Where arms were discharged unintentionally, one sixth of the accidents occurred when the shooter stumbled and fell, the NRA report said.

Rabbit Season

Opinions Of Other Editors

Not The Time Or Way

A mixture of jeers, hoots, catcalls and some scattered applause greeted Herman Shumlin's startling suggestion that the broadcasting industry should subsidize the theater. Shumlin, one of the great figures in the Broadway theatrical world, gave vent to his idea when testifying as a representative of the League of New York Theaters at a hearing before the House Education and Labor Committee.

He accused the broadcasters of enjoying a free ride on the theatre, claiming competition from the air waves has helped diminish the stage. He suggested a five per cent kickback from the fabulous income of television and radio and estimated it would produce $100 million a year.

What wonderful things the stage could do with such a windfall.

Touring companies of live actors could be sent to practically every town and city in the country for subsidized performances, and the golden days of the road which Allentown still remembers would be revived in full flower. It would bring back to the small towns the great stars in classic or contemporary productions at prices people could afford.

It's all a beautiful dream — but only a dream. Certainly no industry should pay a discriminatory tax to support its less successful competitor.

It's good to know that government representatives heard these things. Sooner or later, when this nation no longer need pour so much of its treasure into lands that provide public support for the creative arts, it might consider doing something on behalf of those who contribute so much to the joy of living.

The Brutality Of Cops

Two conflicting reports are available: one shows the constant increase of crime and the lowering ages of criminals; the other is the report of the Civil Rights Commission that police brutality is widespread and should be curbed. The statisical report of the FBI on criminal activities is a statement of fact; the report of the Civil Rights Commission is a statement of opinion.

Let us take New York City where I live as an example. Crime has increased so that parks are closed at night; men and women are mugged on principal streets at night; pocketbook snatching is not unusual; certain streets are unsafe for anyone not only because of individual assaults and robberies but because of gang fights.

These conditions are so in many large Northern and Eastern cities. The very kindly Father Hesburgh, President of Notre Dame, who is a member of the Civil Rights Commission, writes:

"1. The actions of most policemen demonstrate that effective law enforcement is possible without the use of unlawful violence.

"2. Nonetheless, police brutality by some state and local officers presents a serious and continuing problem in many parts of the United States. Both whites and Negroes are the victims, but Negroes are the victims of such brutality far more, proportionately, than any other group in American society."

The job of a policeman is to maintain order on his beat and to prevent criminals from molesting decent citizens. The policeman should be free to beat up a hoodlum with a night-stick and to shoot to kill, if necessary. Father Hesburgh originally came from the Bronx and if he would walk through the streets of his childhood, he would be shocked by the conditions that exist there.

The confusion in this report arises from the general tendency to drag the Negro question into all discussions on any subject, as though that question alone mattered in our society. I prefer to call it the Negro question because that is what it is.

Sociologists and others prefer to hide behind fancy words, but the fact of the matter is that the discussion is about Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

It is not unusual for new immigrants to find it difficult to adjust to the new and, in many respects, novel situations in which they find themselves when they are uprooted from their traditional mores. The family structure rapidly disintegrates and youth lives in an undisciplined atmosphere.

This was true of the Irish immigrants; of the Russian-Polish-Rumanian and other Jews who settled in such a section as the East Side of New York; it was true of the early Italian immigrants who organized such societies as the Black Hand and the Mafia; it was true of the Southern Negro who moved North in the hope of bettering his conditions and found that he was unwelcomed despite the Northern boast of a superior racial attitude.

There are many reasons why the newer migrant groups (and I include the Negroes in this category) become local problems. Adjustments are not easy. My youth was spent under precisely the conditions that all the reports deal with. Recently, I visited the Educational Alliance, the settlement house which was a second home to me in those days.

The fellowship of older men and women included a number who are now distinguished and wealthy. One of the friends of my childhood has contributed a quarter or a half million dollars for good works—the amount is unimportant because he told me that he expects to give it all back before he dies and his wife said Amen to that.

But when we were boys we were very poor and many of the parents engaged in marginal trades. The police were not brutal but they kept us in order. Those who did not obey their parents and the police in time joined gangs, as some others of us joined settlements.

Those who joined gangs became major criminals and are among the best-known criminals and racketeers of the past half century. Others became priests, rabbis, doctors, lawyers, judges, businessmen and even college professors.

The policeman can be a good friend but he must have a strong arm. When the night-stick was taken from him, great mischief was done to boys and girls. Father Hesburgh should know that from his childhood, as I know it from mine in the big city.

CUTIES —By E. Simms Campbell

The Pennsylvania Story

Gubernatorial Rabbits

Harrisburg — Gubernatorial rabbits are popping out of the hat—like rabbits.

And, as one old line fact was called to his attention:

And, as one old line party political pro in an aside to this reporter commented as the fact was called to his attention:

"Let 'em—we'll knock 'em off like rabbits."

Two points seemingly are worth nothing for the foregoing:

(1) There is this year a yen—a somewhat definite and determined yen—on the part of nearly a score of men who really would "like" to be gubernatorial candidates, as opposed to the conventional heretofore two or three.

(2) There are those cigar ash-encrusted party old pros still determined to do business "as usual" and at the same old village pump as per custom of a quarter century ago—the ones who are going to "knock 'em off like rabbits."

Of course by the time all the dickering, shooting and scalping is over and done with the field in all probability will be narrowed down to perhaps two or three primary candidates in the May primary next year.

However developments on the gubernatorial candidate front in this year 1961 are interesting—even at this early stage.

In the first place candidates for such office in the past — or perhaps it would be better at this point to say "potential candidates"—have been sorely lacking. What then has brought about any change insofar as this upcoming 1962 gubernatorial campaign is concerned?

The answer for the most part lies in the comparative strength of the two major parties in the Keystone State.

Heretofore any comparative "strength" has been largely a lopsided affair.

Historically for example, Pennsylvania Republicans — prior to about last year—were so vastly in the "ruling heiarchy" insofar as strength was concerned that they literally called the shots at will.

In those days the registration edge was not just "in favor' of the Pennsylvania GOP —it was "overwhelmingly in favor" of the elephant riders.

As a result: Republican candidates were simply dictated almost oafishly by ranking GOParty old pros. Only one rabbit ever had a chance of emerging from the magical hat!

On the other hand, Pennsylvania Democrats were so far down the ladder strengthwise; the chances of winning so remote and impossible (as past events clearly demonstrated)—that it was a question of beating the hustings and burning the woods to produce even one" sacrificial lamb" for the Democratic cause.

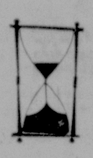

Today the "strength" picture is decidedly different. Today Pennsylvania Democrats for the first time out-register Republicans (by some 155,000-plus) but nothing compared with the near-million edge once enjoyed by Republicans.

It's an edge to be sure—but it is not even remotely approaching a secure edge, as witness the Republican win November 7 in the statewide judicial race.

The point to be made is that under such circumstances — a circumstance of fairly even guessing strength—the party old pros in neither party are in firm position to flatly dictate. Any old political hack of yesteryear no longer can be blindly machined into the gubernatorial chair.

It requires the vote now outside the old machine orbit to produce the victory edge—the power play on the part of both parties is that close.

It is perhaps small wonder then that the list of potential candidates for the governorship this year already is somewhat impressive from the numerical standpoint—in addition, that is, to the standard party hack potentials!

Paul S. Shafer of Henryville was slightly injured when his car collided with a car driven by a Philadelphia woman. The accident occurred at Monroe and Eighth Streets.

A utility pole fell across Route 115 in Saylorsburg after it was struck by a car. The driver Harry Bartholomew, escaped injury.

Two trucks were destroyed by fire after they crashed on Route 611 near Wigwam Park. Neither driver was injured and Stroud Township firemen extinguished the blaze. Damage was estimated at $7,000.

Bob Evans, 215-pound tackle was named captain of the University of Pennsylvania football team. He was the first Negro ever elected to the post at Penn.

The bear kill in Pike County was reported at 50 for the season. This was one of the largest kills recorded by that county.

Carl Secor announced that circulars would be dropped from an airplane. The papers would tell the story of the Monroe County Chapter, American Red Cross. Included in the circulars were 10 marked "free ride." Those finding these would be given a free airplane ride.

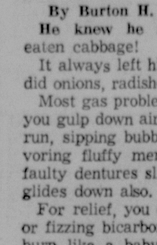

How many remember when Charles Weibacker formed the "American House Eight"? That was in 1921.

Mrs. Kay Weisenflue turned in a 508 total wood in a match against East Stroudsburg Lumber Co.'s bowling team. She was bowling for Marsh's Foundry.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

An interesting letter came into our hands via Alex Traycheck, the Pocono Mountains' super-duper salesman. The missive, published in the Sarasota Herald Tribune, has a lot of meat and deserves reading.

Whether you agree or disagree with the writer is another matter. But the letter indicates thought-provoking answers to questions social workers, educators, and police authorities are asking daily throughout the United States.

To use only excerpts from the letter would be an injustice to the writer. So here's the entire message as printed in the Florida newspaper:

Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teen-ager. What can we do? Where can we go?

The answer is: GO HOME!

Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves, mow the lawn, shovel the walk. Wash the car, learn to cook, scrub some floors. Repair the sink, build a boat, get a job.

Help the minister, priest or rabbi, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army. Visit the sick, assist the poor, study your lessons. Then when you are through — and not too tired —read a book.

Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city or village does not owe you recreational facilities. The world does not owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and your energy and your talents so no one will be at war or in poverty or sick or lonely again.

Grow up: quit being a crybaby. Get out of your dream world and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like a man or lady.

You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibility your parents have carried for years. They have pursed, protected, helped, appealed, begged, excused, tolerated and denied themselves needed comforts so that you could have every benefit. This they have done gladly for you are their dearest treasure.

But now you have no right to expect them to bow to every whim and fancy just because selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality thinking and request.

In heaven's name, grow up and go home-

About Town

"The Complaisant Lover" opened last night in New York City. We saw it in New Haven and, no matter what the critics say, avoid it by all means. The stage is a poor place for adult adultery.

Some hardy soul is going to suggest (it will come as a surprise to all of us) that the U.S. and U.S.S.R. should find a modus operandi of getting along.

The Allen-Scott Report

Nehru To Tell 'K'

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, Nov. 27—The U. S. is poised to bomb Communist airfields, supply depots and communication lines if the Reds launch their threatened offensive against South Viet Nam.

President Kennedy has served this blunt warning on Premier Khrushchev through Prime Minister Nehru.

The Indian leader agreed to transmit the militant message during his recent talks with the President. In acting as intermediary, Nehru is repeating a role he filled for President Eisenhower in 1953.

Then the new Republican President, through Nehru, notified Stalin's successor, Georgi Malenkov, that unless an armistice was promptly signed in Korea, the U. S. would carry the war directly to the Red Chinese by bombing their bases and industrial centers in Manchuria. Within a few weeks the Communists came to terms at Panmunjom.

The Red bases that would be blasted under President Kennedy's grim warning are in North Viet Nam and Laos, near South Viet Nam's border.

The Communists' main air and supply installations are in the vicinity of Hanoi, capital of satellite North Viet Nam. Last month, U. S. reconnaissance planes discovered five new Red airfields on the Laos-South Viet Nam border. Russian MIG-17 jet fighters and some large piston-type cargo planes were observed on several of these fields.

What's Behind It — The President served his unannounced warning on Khrushchev on the recommendation of General Maxwell Taylor, following his first-hand survey of the grave South Viet Nam situation.

This far-reaching action was approved by Secretary of State Rusk, Defense Secretary McNamara and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

U. S. Navy and Air Force bombers and fighters already are disposed to retaliate if the Communists disregard the President's warning and carry out their large-scale attack on pro-Western South Viet Nam.

The Reds' military built-up has been under way for months.

An estimated 35,000 regular and guerrilla North Vietnamese forces are concentrated in South Vietnam or in Laos, near the former's borders. Of these Soviet trained troops, 15,000 are regulars and 20,000 guerrillas. The Communists also have a sizable airforce and a number of naval vessels.

If the decision is made to blast the Reds' airbases and depots, it will be done in conjunction with the South Viet Nam airforce.

It consists of around 20 propeller-type fighter planes, but is being expanded. President NgoDinh Diem strongly urged General Taylor that the U. S. provide "military support" for South Vietnamese air attacks on Communist bases, and to land several thousand jungle fighters behind the Reds' lines in North Viet Nam and Laos.

Diem asserted he has the necessary troops for such assaults if the U. S. supplies the air and naval facilities to "deliver" them.

Taylor considers both proposals militarily feasible and advisable.

President Kennedy detailed all this to Nehru in emphasizing U. S. determination to prevent the threatened Communist seizure of South Viet Nam. Deeply impressed, Nehru agreed to convey the blunt warning to Khrushchev.

The Next Speaker!—Representative John McCormick, Mass., is continuing to nail down his election as next Speaker of the House.

He has won the support of another powerful veteran leader — Representative Howard Smith, Va., chairman of the longcontroversial Rules Committee. Several days after the burial of Speaker Sam Rayburn, Smith telephoned McCormack.

"I want you to know, John," he said, "that I'm for you 100 per cent. If there is anything I can do to help you on the Speakership, you can count on me. I welcome the opportunity to be of service."

Elated by this unsolicited potent backing, McCormack expressed his gratitude and asked Smith's aid in lining up the other members of the Virginia delegation.

"I'll go to work on that right away," replied Smith. "I think you can safely count on our entire group."

Other influential House leaders who have personally assured McCormack of their backing are Representatives Clarence Cannon, Mo., chairman of the Appropriations Committee; Chet Holifield, Calif., head of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and a key member of the liberal "Study Group;" Carl Vinson, Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee; Adam Clayton Powell, N. Y., head of the Education & Labor Committee; Emanuel Cellar, N. Y., head of the Judiciary Committee; Olin Teague, Tex., head of the Veterans Affairs Committee; Wilbur Mills, Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; George Miller, Calif., head of the Science & Astronautics Committee; Francis Walter, Pa., chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee.

Other important leaders backing McCormack are Representatives William Colmer, Miss., ranking member of the Rules Committee; William Green, Pa., who swings much weight in White House political councils; Robert Sikes, Fla., head of an Appropriations subcommittee.

While McCormack is virtually assured of being the next Speaker, he is taking no chances. He has written a personal letter to every Democratic member of the House asking for his vote. McCormack also is personally telephoning many members.

Inside You And Yours

A Head In Your Intestines

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

He knew he shouldn't have eaten cabbage!

It always left him bloated. So did onions, radishes and beans.

Most gas problems begin when you gulp down air—eating on the run, sipping bubbly pop and savoring fluffy meringues. When faulty dentures slide around, air glides down also.

For relief, you down extra air or fizzing bicarbonate, hoping to burp like a baby. Often more goes down that comes up!

As stomach acid and food-digesting chemicals thin out over the years, undigested starch and protein pass into the lower tract. Here, millions of nibbling bacteria manufacture new gas and colicky cramps.

Trapped Gas

Prescriptions for intestine-relaxing drugs open a super-highway down which gas can rush. Activated charcoal shrinks gas bubbles. High colonics and all sorts of intestinal rinses try to wash out trapped gas.

But nothing could cure gurgling, rumbling cramps! Trapped in thousands of tiny bubbles, intestinal gas couldn't rush anywhere—not until experts found a special defoaming chemical to unlock these bubbly traps.

With today's sugar-coated defoaming tablets, bubbles and troubles evaporate. Your doctor may choose Mylicon (R) or Phazyme (R) with extra food-digesting chemicals as well.

Relax While Eating

To prevent gas, grind each bite between powerful molars. Relax while you eat. Let dessert settle before facing TV's 1930 mobsters. Even G-men get ulcers.

Mild sedative prescriptions calm nervous air-swallowing. No smoking or chewing before meals. You don't want a stomach full of air ready to foam up at the first bite.

Watch For Clause

Despite the well-earned reputation of onions, cabbage and beans, almost any food can be a gasser. You'll have to track down common offenders in your own case. Milk? Chocolate? Or possibly grapefruit?

There's more than meets the eye in that old saying about one man's meat being another man's poison!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

The Humorists

Humorists have gifted civilization with laughter — a precious possession that provides temporary refuge against the terror of a world crisis or a dreary daily existence. Among the titans of civilized wit was James Thurber. For more than three decades he was one of the nation's leading humorists. The turning point of his career was the sale of a short story in the 1920s. It happened this way: Told by his wife that he was writing too slowly Thurber set the clock to ring in forty-five minutts and began writing. When the alarm rang he put the final period on his yarn. The story was titled: "American Romance." The tale of a man who sets a world record for going around in a revolving door.

H. L. Mencken wrote with roman candles and his ideas gave off sparks. He thundered against stuffed-shirtism—whether it came in the form of reckless censorship, political demagoguery or general stupidity. There was not a social institution or a moral convention that did not feel the sting of his wit. His gift for words lifted insults to the level of poetry. He made the thumb-on-nose an artistic salute.

Typical of his ability to outrage and outfox his critics was this incident: He once compiled an anthology titled "Menckeniana." It was a collection of anti-Mencken invectives employed by his belittlers. It included such dainty reprimands as skunk, polecat, parasite, mongrel, foul-minded satyr, degraded, literary cad and liar supreme. Mencken ended up collecting royalties on his foes' insults.

Mencken joined the select list of civilization's oracles whose wit eventually attains the timeless quality of proverbs. For example, his classic definition of conscience: "A still, small voice that whispers somebody may be looking" . . . He nutshelled the battle of the sexes: "In a duel of sex, woman fights from the dreadnaught and man from an open raft" . . . He scorned censors with: "They have all the power of a court, but none of the responsibilities" . . . And there was his shockingly accurate evaluation of fame's futility: "The final test of fame is to have a crazy person imagine he is you."

Wit frequently has a scornful quality that demolishes the absurdities of life and the vanities of individuals. Among the deftest practitioners of satirical thrusts was Fred Allen. For illustrative purposes, there's his classic: "California is a wonderful place—if you're an orange." His barbed size-up: "Hollywood is a place where people from Iowa mistake each other for stars."

After quitting radio he wryly commented: "It's wonderful this freedom. You can live on the money you save on aspirin" . . . His quipper-snapper about following the bangtails is typically scornful: "Horseplaying doesn't make sense. The jockeys get the ride, the hose gets the exercise, the bookmakers get the money and the horseplayers get the headache."

His gift for bright gloom inspired the legend he once snatched a youngster from the path of a speeding truck. Then growled: "What's the matter, Kid? Don't you want to grow up and have troubles?"

The ability to inspire thoughtful laughter demands superior intelligence combined with a sharpshooter's accuracy. Mark Twain was a master of this form of wit. He wore the cap-and-bells like a crown . . . His merciless truth: "By trying we can easily learn to endure adversity—another man's I mean" . . . He realistically observed: "Virtue has never been as respectable as money."

Chess Club Enjoys Match On Thursday

THE THURSDAY night session of the Stroudsburg Chess Club at the Main Street headquarters was headed by the presence of the club champion, James Heatherington, East Stroudsburg. He was home for the Thanksgiving vacation from Lafayette College.

The champ was very well received by his fellow clubmen who were much interested in his description of the interest in the ancient game at the college.

He discussed several problems in chess attack with his predecessor as champion, Harold N. James. However, accepting a challenge from Heatherington, the champion met defeat in a long and difficult contest.

Earl Weiss, Stroudsburg, took on William P. Deering, who claims to be club cellar champion, but, as Weiss is one of the club's first echelon players, refused to put his title on the line. Deering was sharply defeated.

Louis Mondelle, East Stroudsburg, persistant challenger for the cellar title, then threw down the gauntlet and the balance of the session, found the members watching a stubborn contest between these two with Deering winning.

Deering came to the meeting fresh from four defeats at the hands of his son, Sgt. William R. Deering, Easton, who was chess champion of General Mark Clark's American-English division in the Appenines in the bitter Winter following the Allied repulse at Casino. Deering and his son, who hail from Gloucester, Mass., were having a Thanksgiving reunion here.

Canadensis Man Assigned To Picatinny

PVT. RICHARD Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Beck, Canadensis, has recently been assigned to the Army Ordnance Corps' Picatinny Arsenal.

Private Beck entered the Army in August 1961 and completed eight weeks basic training at Fort Knox, Ky. A 1959 graduate of Brown University, he holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics. He will be assigned as a mathematician in the Arsenal's research laboratories.

Picatinny Arsenal is the research and engineering center for the U. S. Ordnance Special Weapons-Ammunition Command, under the direction of Maj. Gen. W. K. Ghormley, and has developed components for some of the country's most formidable missile warheads.

Knight May Have Hepatitis

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight's doctor said yesterday he believes the 64-year-old politician has infectious hepatitis.

Dr. Carl E. Lund told The Associated Press: "It looks very much like the beginnings of infectious hepatitis. We have run tests to confirm this and the results won't be in until Monday or Tuesday. But from clinical observation, I would say he's got it."

Dr. Lund termed hepatitis "a serious liver disease." He added: "It isn't the sort of thing you don't get over. But it can lay you up for a long time." He said if Knight does have the disease he could be laid up for three to six months.

Knight threw his hat into the gubernatorial race last September and almost immediately became engaged in a torrid political battle with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He claimed a Nixon representative offered him "a deal" to drop from the race —a charge Nixon denies.

Local Man Assigned To Ship As Cadet

CADET IRVIN T. Burch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Burch of 1760 Honeysuckle Lane Stroudsburg, was recently assigned to the S.S. African Planet a modern cargo vessel operated by Farrell Lines, and engaged in the South and East African trade, as part of his second year of training at the United States Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, New York.

His year at sea is a regular part of the four year course offered at the Academy to train qualified officers for the ships of our Merchant Marine. This year of sea duty is unique for it not only gives the Cadet an opportunity to gain a first hand knowledge of the ships which he will later command, but also enrolls the Cadet as an ambassador of good will in ports of call throughout the world.

While assigned to this vessel he will visit Capetown, Durban, Beira, Lourence Marques, and Zanzibar.

Upon returning to the Academy next fall, he will pursue a rigorous academic schedule encompassing such subjects as International Law, Maritime Law, World History, Naval Architecture, Marine Transportation, Naval Science, and Physics, as well as the extensive military training necessary for a successful career at sea.

Upon graduation in July of 1964, Cadet Burch will be licensed by the United States Coast Guard as a Third Officer in the Merchant Marine, receive a Bachelor of Science Degree, and be commissioned as an Ensign in the United States Naval Reserve.

MR. AND Mrs. Henry J. Snyder, Palmerton R. D. 2, received a letter from Joseph A. Fitzpatrick, LCDR U.S. Navy that their son John has been promoted to Petty Officer Second Class. Close Out Sale Of 1961 GE Appliances Offers Great Saving

SAVE MONEY on every 1961 G-E Appliance in stock at Cyphers Electric in Bartonsville. This sensational Close Out Sale, now in progress, at Cyphers offers the greatest savings of the year. It's an ideal time to buy Mother that new dishwasher or clothes dryer and delivery can be arranged for the Christmas Season. Remember, there is nothing "Just as good as a G-E Appliance".

Four Rules

THERE ARE four things to remember in order to get a satisfactory paint job. First, prepare the surface properly. Second, select the right type of paint or varnish; your dealer can help you in this. Third, apply it properly as directed on the label. Fourth, be sure to use only quality paint products and avoid so-called bargains priced so low that the price seems too good to be true.

Mighty Mike

PROBABLY the mightiest mite of all creation is the tiny seed of the west coast hemlock tree. It takes 400,000 of them to make a pound, yet some of the world's largest trees result from a germinated seed.

Toughness

THE strength of wood framing in actually holding a house together (pound for pound), is stronger than steel.

Stop In And Look Around

WHETHER it's for a Christmas present or just that its time to replace an appliance, now is the time to get the most for your money at Cyphers Electric's big Rally Days Sale of 1961 Appliances!

If you've been thinking of a new washer, dryer or dishwasher as mother's Christmas gift, you'd do well to look in early. Only G-E washers offer a full 12 pound load capacity and a variety of models for every fabric. Automatic settings take over for proper washing of all fabrics and filter flo washing action keeps clothes free of lint.

A new clothes dryer for "Mom" will lighten her work load and eliminate the necessity of carrying baskets of wet clothing in and out of the house for drying. Again G-E's superior engineering gently fluff-dries your clothing, and wash and wear garments are ready to wear without a wrinkle.

Add up the hours mother must spend in the kitchen and you'll decide it's high time she had a G-E mobile-maid dishwasher! She can do a whole day's dishes all in one load . . . dishes come out clean as a whistle, glassware sparkles and silverware is spotfree with G-E's patented washing action.

Don't forget that this great Rally Days Sale also includes famous G-E television! G-E TV was recently acclaimed by actual test to require 20 percent less servicing than other leading makes.

Remember, there is nothing "just as good as a G-E Appliance." G-E's precision engineering is carried out to give you more for your money and Cyphers Electric is the place to find the "lowest prices in the Poconos."

Planning Erases Many Headaches For Homeowner

THE IMPORTANCE of planning for an adequate number of shut off valves in the plumbing system of a house when it is under construction is pointed out by the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

An expenditure of less than $10 when a house is being built can save the homeowner many hours of irritation. Failure to include enough shut off valves can result in having to go without water service all over the house just because repairs are being made at one fixture.

A minimum number of shut-off valves in the home would involve having one located by the water meter, one for the heating system, one for the water heater, and one for each lawn faucet outside the house.

Its Not Too Late To Greet The Holidays With Color

IT'S not too late to repaint your living and dining room for Christmas and it's not too early to start planning a new decor for the Holidays.

Today's virtually odorless, quick drying paints which are available in hundreds of colors can help you greet your guests with a delightful new setting in a few hours time. And the cost of repainting the average room with the best quality paint is not much more than 10 dollars.

After deciding which rooms are to get the beauty treatment, the first thing to do is to select your color scheme. A favorite painting, a treasured rug, or a handsome piece of furniture can help you make your choice.

Remember that the cool colors —blues, greens, light purples—are relaxing, while the warm reds, yellows and oranges are stimulating—too much so if used over wide areas.

Next, visit your reputable paint dealer who will help you choose between latex, or watert–hinned paint which dries in an hour or less, and the alkyd wall paints which take a little longer to dry.

With your dealer's assistance you'll select the proper brushes and rollers and perhaps such handy aids as masking tape, disposable mixing buckets, liquids which degloss old shiny surfaces, guards or small rollers that keep paint off adjacent surfaces, and inexpensive plastic drop cloths, all designed to make your job easier and mort pleasant.

Now you're ready to start. Remove dust from walls with your vacuum cleaner or a dry—not an oil—mop. Perhaps only kitchen walls that may have been spattered by grease or stained with fumes will require a detergent wash.

Dull areas of high gloss with fine sanding or the liquid mentioned earlier so that the new enamel will adhere better. Remove light switch plates and other hardware for a quicker, easier job. Protect furniture and the floors with a drop cloth or old newspapers.

Fill any holes in the plaster with patching or spackling compound and sand smoth when dry. This is a very simple, quick, easy job. If you use latex paint, these patches do not require a special primer; latexes art self-priming. But if alkyd paints are used, patches should be primed.

Ceilings come first. With latex, which does not show lap marks, the easiest way is to paint a strip around the perimeter of the room, protecting the walls with the metal paint guard, old shirt cardboards or masking tape.

Then use a long-handled roller which will permit you to stand on the floor while painting. You can work on a ladder, if you wish, with either brush or roller.

Roll forward, then backward overlapping the previously painted strip. Always start in an unpainted area and roll toward a still-wet space. Bring the roller to a stop before lifting: this prevents splatters.

If you use alkyd paints on the ceiling, paint a two foot long strip next to the wall with a two inch brush and then work across the narrow dimension of the ceiling with brush or roller. Be sure to do the entire ceiling in one session so that there will be no visible lap marks.

After the ceiling has dried do the woodwork, using a semi-gloss enamel in either the same color that will be used for the walls or in one that will go with the wall color. The reason for doing the woodwork before the walls is that it will be easier to remove any spatters of wall paint from the dried enamel than vice versa.

Now for the walls. Protecting the ceiling, apply a narrow strip of wall paint over an area that can be safely reached while on a ladder. If you're right handed, you'll find it easier to start at an upper-right corner and work leftwards. The reverse is true if you're a southpaw.

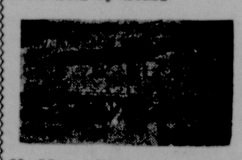

Next, with brush or roller work down toward the baseboard. If you're using a roller make the first stroke upwards, then roll across the area to even the coating. Again, always paint from a dry area into a wet one.

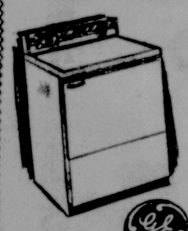

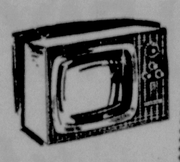

Remember to provide adequate ventilation in the room, even when you work with odorless paints and enamels.

Hearing Aid Supplies At Bud's Shop

BARKER BLAUVELT, owner and operator of the Hearing Aid Center, 760 Main St., Stroulsburg, invites all who have a hearing problem to stop in and see him.

Blauvelt's offices are in the rear of Bud's Men's Shop (same address as above) and features Audivox Hearing Aids.

Blauvelt is a specialist in this field with 11 years experience and is well qualified in audiometric examinations and the proper scientific fitting of hearing aids.

Service and daily sale of batteries and cords for most makes of aids are available at the Hearing Aid Center.

Blauvelt will hold a clinic the first and third Thursday of each month from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. His main office is located on the ground floor of the Scranton Life Building, and he also maintains a branch in Honesdale.

Repairs, batteries and cords can be obtained any day of the week at Bud's Men's Shop.

Adds Allure

WOOD paneling adds allure to any room, and the famed prestige wood, west coast hemlock, is one of the most alluring, especially when it is finished naturally with clear lacquers.

Gathering Cones

HUNDREDS of people living in Oregon and Washington are getting a vacation with pay this year. They are gathering the west coast hemlock trees for private tree nurseries where industry raises millions of seedlings a year to plant non-stocked forest land.

Bowling Highlights

Colonial Pocono Mts. League

Sinclair Oil won its 16th consecutive point as it blanked first place E. D. Huffmans 4 to 0 and knocked it from first place in the league standings. Bob Weirich again paced the winners with his 205-571 match Ernie Martz' 201-549 was high for the losers.

Gray Chevrolet won a 4 to 0 decision from Colonial Lanes. Jake Nittel was high for the winners with his 209-573 match and R. Shupp's 226-570 topped the losers.

Bush Well Drilling won its first four point victory of the year as it stopped Brite Cleaners. Charles Allen with a 216-556 trio was high scorer.

Rhineland Inn won a 3 to 1 victory over Pocono Top Hat with Joe Hodgson's 564 match being the best score.

With Steve Balcik hitting 606 and Walt Keiper 603, Monroe Music rolled three 900 games and swamped the Nights by 400 pins and a 4 to 0 victory. Grant Rarick with a 225-582 was high for the losers.

Metzgar's Market gained a 3 to 1 decision from Marshalls Creek Kennels in a very low scoring contest.

Bushkill League

Lawrence Dickison, with 213 and 529, led Bushkill Falls to a 4-0 win over Echo Lake Farms Hotel. High man for the Hotel was Foster Miller with 486. Asher Whittaker, Sign Painter decisioned Rick DePue 3-1. Bob Taylor led the former with 489 and best for Rick's was Rick DePue with 503. Turn's General Store went down 3-1 to Timothy Lake Estates. Brantley Whittaker Jr. was high man for Timothy with 467 and best for the Store was Lou Lee with 523.

Commercial "B" League

Babe's Service Station took the first two games and total wood from L. and B. Appliances and a 3-1 decision. Babe's high man was Harry Miller with 523 and for the Appliances Ray Pensyl with 487. Schaefer Beer swept four points from Eagles "B". Schaefer, paced by Pete Arnold with 243 and 581. Doug Townsend hit for 224 and 594 for the Eagles. Monroe Classic League

Hank Baustein hit the pins for 256 and 612 and was the key man for Frank's Barber Shop as they took four points from Bill Altiers. Bob Weisenflue led the latter with 537. Square Bar lost 4 to 0 to Ballantine. Ballantine was paced by Bill Rusk with 589, Jack Bergman with 593 and Russ Bergman with 585. Ollie Weber led the Bar with 547. Al Besecker's Diner had three men over 600 as it decisioned Schaefer Beer 3 to 1. Carl Kohl had 224 and 607, Ted Hoffman 241 and 602 and Harold Storms 214 and 609. Besecker's set a league high single at 1049 in it's second game. Jake Nittle led Schaefer's with 225 and 613.

Monroe County League

CLU Club handed Al Besecker's Diner (league leaders) a surprise as they took a 4-0 decision. Buck Pipher was the big man with 213 and 551. Dave Besecker was best for the Diner with 488. Half Moon Tavern won 3 to 1 from Blue Note Inn. Tom Carmella Jr. led the former with 491 and Al Howey Sr. the latter with 495. Ray Steele Sr., with 202 and 581, paced Gem Lunch to a 4 to 0 win over Schimmel's Store. Harold Strunk was best for the Store with 545.

Patterson-Kelley

Material Control trimmed Shop handily in the first two but dropped the finale by six pins to relinquish the top spot for the first time this year. Control's 962 opener set a new league hign. Larry Correll socked a steady 556, backed by three other 500's, while Gene Strunk received less support for his 218-590.

Test Floor rolled three good games to sweep the Office five easily and erase the league high triple with a 2639, and moved into first place. Frank McNamara's 219-571 topped Floor's four 500's, while the losers offered only sub Ott Peechatka's 492.

The Draftsmen bumped the Outside Gang from the 6th rung again, 4 to 0, rolling their season high. Capt. Sam Litts led the winers with a 205-538, as Capt. Herb Haney's 505 topped the Gang.

The Welders shut out a short-handed Engineers quint, led by Dayt Martz' 517. Sub John Sibley belted a nice 202-538 in a losing cause.

Colonial 4-Man League

Wally Straub with a 235-598 led the league. It wasn't enough, however, as league leading Peter's Texaco defeated Leggeries Pizzeria 3 to 1. Jack Bergman with a 224-593 led Peter's Texaco.

Kenny Fetherman with a 572 led Sealtest Ice Cream to a 3 to 1 victory over Dirk's Tavern. John Weirich with a 553 was top man for Dirk's.

Augie Lockowitch with a 550 led Bud's Men's Shop to a 3 to 1 victory over Schoch's Esso.

Frank McNamara with a 563 paced McCormick's Builders to a 3 to 1 victory over Colonial Lanes. High for Colonial Lanes was Frank Belli with 564.

Pocono Major League

With Carl Kohl's 234-659 match pacing the way Lawsons Automotive blanked Stbg. Furnace Co. 4 to 0. Frank Laise with 202-558 was high for the losers.

Swisher Distributing Co. dropped a 3 to 1 decision to Fabel's Dairy. Stan Konawalik with a 213-570 match was high for the losers while Marlin Rutts 201-566 topped the Dairy team.

Pocono Pump Co. rolled its best match of the season but only gained a 2 and 2 split with Happy Hour Tavern. Charles Allen with a 244-611 and Al Schoch with a 218-619 were the best individual scores.

Baylor Motors knocked off first place Fabel's Gulf by a 3 to 1 score. Martin Setzer's 212-567 was high for the winners, as Al Andress with 205-575 was tops for the losers.

Pocono Major League

Lawson's Automotive moved into first place as it tok Fabel's Dairy 4 to 0. Woody Fenner's 234 single game and Carl Kohl's 606 trio were the big scoring guns in the victory. Bill Fry's 203-551 was high for Fabels.

Swisher Distributing Co. stopped Happy Hour Tavern by a 3 to 1 score. High for Swishers was Stan Konawalik with 204-566 and for the Tavern, Randy Morris with 206-555.

Baylor Motors gained a 3 to 1 victory over Pocono Pump Co. Ted Hoffman's 215-590 paced the victors and for the losers Erv. Bushs' 514 was high.

Just Between Us— —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The full effect of the Thru-way won't be known until next Summer I suppose, but it's already caused its full share of conversation among us local yokels.

I've heard that when winter silences Niagara Falls, everybody within a ten mile radius wakes up, wondering what's the matter. People living along Main St. or South Seventh had much the same experience over the weekend, waking to silence and wondering where the trucks went.

On the other hand, along the somnolent quiet of Bryant St., folks woke in the dawn wondering why all the airplanes were roaring overhead, only to discover that it was the heavy trucks pounding by beneath. For the ones on the north side, the sweep of headlights as they round the bend is like having an erratic lighthouse beaming in their windows.

For those of us who live in one town and work in the other, there's a comparison of the amount of time saved, mileage and speculating about how the winding approaches are going to be in ice and snow. Those circles do odd things to mileage — using the same road, it's a mile further from the office to home than it is from home to office.

For the curious, there's a whole new town to discover the backside of — summer houses and barbecue pits, junk yards and tool sheds, new housing developments and old shacks. Very soon, of course, the road will become commonplace and we won't see any more than we used to see driving the old familiar way.

But at least it's a seven day wonder.

Anniversary Open House For Analomink Couple

Analomink—Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Bates, who were married Nov. 29, 1911, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at an open house on Sunday from 2 to 5 p. m., with many friends calling to congratulate them.

They were married in the parsonage of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church by Rev. Eli Pickervill. Mrs. Bates is the former Miss Elsie Smith.

They have two children, Florence, a teacher at the Clearview School, and Robert, who lives in Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Bates has been a resident of Analomink all of his life, most of which he has been in the lumber business. He worked in the sawmill in Analomink which he now owns and operates. He is a member of the Patriotic Order Sons of America and has been a fire warden for more than 40 years, and active in community affairs.

Mrs. Bates is also active in church and social affairs in the community.

Thankoffering Presented By Fidelity Circle

Portland — A message on the theme "The Art of Giving" by Mrs. C. J. Kneeling, president, was followed by the presentation of thank offering church boxes by the Fidelity Circle of the Portland Presbyterian Church at their meeting held at the home of Mrs. Raymond Transue.

As each member presented her gift, she read a message of cheer or thanksgiving. Half of the proceeds will be donated to the building Fund for Presbyterian Homes throughout the country. Mrs. Irving Duerr and Mrs. Raymond Transue also took part in the opening devotions.

Miss Katherine Delp, reporting for the renovating committee, announced that painting of halls, dining room and kitchen of the social rooms is now in progress. Drapes for the areas are being donated by Mrs. C. J. Kneeling, Miss Katherine Delp, Miss Alice Delp and Mrs. Paul Sigafoss.

A Christmas party and dinner was planned for Tuesday, Dec. 12, with Mrs. Raymond Transue and Mrs. Arthur Bartron as the committee on arrangements. There will be a gift exchange. Mrs. Edgar Dalbert and Mrs. Arthur Bartron will take charge of the Christmas gifts and baskets of cheer to shutins from the circle.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Transue assisted by Miss Ruth Jones of Bethlehem and Mrs. Ethel Seely to: Mrs. Arthur Bartron, Columbia, N.J., Mrs. Lela Williams and Mrs. Irving Duerr of Slateford, Mrs. C. J. Kneeling, Mrs. Paul Sigafoss, Miss Katherine Delp, Miss Alice Delp of Middle Village, Mrs. Edgar Dalbert, Mrs. William Kenned, Mrs. Carl Kramer Sr., Mrs. Erma Pritchow Mrs. E. Randall Carpenter, Mrs. Ernest Courtney.

Pamela Reimer 12 Years Old

Bangor — Miss Pamela Reimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Reimer, was honored with a Birthday Supper at her home on Friday evening. The celebration was in honor of her twelfth birthday.

Present at the celebration were Misses Becky Rehrig, Kathy Jewell, Bonnie Rice, Patricia Cramer, Cassie Kurts, Karen Kuettgen, Donna Wildrick, Marsha Stiles, Peggy Reagle, Mary Jean Beck, Kay Miller, Virginia Benn, Craig Newton, Curtis Reimer, Mrs. Carl Beck, Mrs. Albert Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Reimer, and the guest of honor.

Party Postponed

Effort — The Secret Pals of St. John's Lutheran Church, Effort, have postponed the Christmas party scheduled for Friday, Dec. 1, because of death in their church family.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR of the Altar and Rosary Society to be held Wednesday night at the American Legion is almost ready to go. Here left to right, Mrs. John Kulba, chairman of the baby booth; Miss Eve Zateeny, bazaar chairman; and Mrs. Miles Werkheiser, novelties. Santa Claus will be there from 7 to 9 to have his picture taken with the children.

Mrs. Koopman is the former Mary Frances Frankenfield, daughter of Mrs. D. W. Frankenfield, Stroudsburg. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Klaus Koopman of Saylorsburg.

Senior Citizens

The Senior Citizens of Monroe County will make plans for their Christmas party and draw names for exchange of gifts at their meeting to be held Thursday at 2 at the social rooms of the CLU Club, East Stroudsburg. A social time will follow the business meeting.

Bradford-Zacharias Wedding

Kresgeville — Miss Emma Zacharias was married on Saturday night at 6 p.m. in a candlelight service in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, to John Bradford. Rev. John Kline performed the ceremony.

The wedding reception was held later in the Little Gap Grange.

The bride, a 1959 graduate of the local high school, has been employed in New Jersey. They will make their home in an apartment in Newark, N. J.

Holiday Plans Announced By Altar, Rosary

Brodheadsville — Holiday plans were completed by the Altar and Rosary Society of Our Lady Queen of Peace Church with Dec. 14 as the date for the secret pal party when members will exchange gifts and decorate the auditorium and Christmas tree for the parish Christmas party on Sunday, Dec. 17.

Named to the hospitality committee were Marge Mondrick, Sophie Kriss, and Margaret Reiner; party, Helen Bilodeau, Rose Talpas, Charlotte Koslowski, Alvina Scerbo, Toni Shultz and Marie Schultz; Santa's helpers, Corinne Gagnon and Rose Dorshimer.

Advent wreaths, available to parishioners, will be made by Myra Beck, Rose and Nancy Talpas, Marge and Kathy Mondrick, Alvin and Bonnie Scerbo.

Charlotte Koslowski reported on progress of the library. Rose Talpas presided at the business session.

Marie Schultz, assisted by the parish chairmen of National Council of Catholic Women committees, set forth the purposes and projects: Rose Talpas, organization and development; Helen Bilodeau, charities; Marge Mondrick, confraternity of Christian doctrine.

Stresses were the importance of helping one another by prayer, good deeds and actions.

In discussing Christian family life, Mrs. Schultz defined it as the core of society, created and planned by God to continue His work on earth. Charlotte Koslowski, chairman of family and parent education played a recording by Sam Levenson, "Seriously Yours, Folks," as of help to all parents

Refreshments were served by Helen Bilodeau, Charlotte Koslowski and Bertha Held.

Lt. William Neison Jr. Is Married In Reading

Announcement is made of the marriage of Lt. William Neison, Jr., USAF, to Miss Joan Missimer, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Missimer, of Reading, RD 3, on Saturday, Oct. 28 at 11 a. m. at the Holy Rosary Catholic Church, Reading. Lt. Neison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Neison, of Minisink Hills.

Rev. Francis Nave performed the ceremony which was followed by a reception at The Stokesay.

The bride wore a gown of white peau de soie embroidered with seed pearls with a picture neckline, long tapering sleeves and a bell skirt with a train. Her tiered veil of silk illusion fell from a pearl crown and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Her attendants wore dresses of orange peau de soie with pillbox feather hats with veils and carried bouquets of roses. The maid of honor was Miss Gagliano; the bridesmaids, Roseanne and Josephine Missimer, sisters of the bride, and a cousin, Rosemary Stoner, all of Reading. The flower girls were the bride's niece, Deobarah Care; and a cousin, Susan Stoner.

Kirk Neison served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Eugene Plaza, of Jersey City; Lt. James O'Brien, of Pittsburgh, and Michael Levengood and Richard Greene, of Reading.

The bride, a graduate of Exeter High School, was employed by Bell Telephone Co.

Lt. Neison was graduated in June from Gettysburg College and received his commission in the Air Force at graduation. He is a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

After the reception they left for Turner Air Force Base in Albay, Ga., where Lt. Neison is stationed.

The Wyckoff Shopper
"the friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Just for the record, Santa reported having received 1100 telephone calls at his North Pole Workshop last evening (Tuesday, the 21st) courtesy of Wyckoff's. "I swear by all my reindeers, I was the weariest man in the world when it was over," he said,"and Mrs. Claus was worried I'd lose my voice entirely." Santa, who is the merriest of souls, chuckled as he added, "I wouldn't have worried a bit had Mrs. Claus lost HER voice for awhile. Despite my laryngitis, it was pleasant to have TWO full hours when she, dear soul, couldn't interrupt me."

Santa, I take it, is in much the same position as countless other long-married males. Or maybe he's been reading too many magazine articles about the poor, unfortunate, down-trodden creature called MAN.

"Were most of the calls legitimate?" I wanted to know, "Or did you have a lot of crazy calls from men, women, and youngsters old enough to know better?"

"There were a few of those," Santa admitted. "One in particular, I recall—a young woman who, when I answered with 'Santa speaking' began scolding, 'Well, this is MRS. Santa. Now when are you going to get home here for supper?'" Santa roared in glee. "I got back at her though. I said, 'My dear, what are you planning to serve tonight?' She said 'Pork Chops,' and I bellowed, 'WHAT! Again? Can't you ever serve anything except pork chops to a hungry man?' That did it! She hung up."

Noticing the twinkle in his eye, I prodded, "Did you REALLY think for a moment it was Mrs. Santa on the other end of that line?"

Santa winked, and changed the subject. No, that's not quite accurate. He didn't CHANGE the subject, he just brought it to a conclusion. All he said was, "You know—women are something." Now WHAT did he mean by that?

"Something" too, are the new items of lingerie by Lorraine just put on display in our store. The very nicest thing about Lorraine gowns is their peak-of-fashion-prettiness, partly because of their fresh, bright colors. Second nicest thing is their price. Lorraine wear is so very inexpensive, one wonders how the company can produce such attractive, well made, daintily-trimmed merchandise for the price.

This new Lorraine collection is in two types of batiste—the ever-popular cotton, selling at 4.00 each piece; and the blend, which never needs ironing, and is priced at 5.95 for the gowns and 6.95 for the peignoirs. Pure white, soft as silk, is the only color in batiste blend, but the frilly, embroidered trims at neckline, sleeves, and waistline are Raspberry, as are the ribbon sashes.

In the 4.00 cotton batiste are two prints: one, a gay, Springlike witchery of flowers and butterflies in deep Pink or Turquoise; the other, a new version of an old favorite, the dot. There are, in the former, waltz length gowns both fitted and loose, baby doll pajamas, shortie gown and peignoirs, sizes 32 to 40 and S, M, and L. In the other, somewhat more tailored print, are shortie gowns, fitted and loose waltz gowns, and baby dolls, white with trim of Medium Blue or Raspberry to match the Signal Dots. Yes, SIGNAL dots—a woven splash of color that reminds one of the light signals flashed from ship to ship or ship to shore. We hope YOU catch the signal, and include these on your Christmas gift list.

Rev. Harold Eaton, a busy sightseer in our center aisle, reminds me to remind you that tomorrow, Wednesday, November 29th, the Red Cross Blood Mobile will solicit blood at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. under auspices of the Monroe County Ministerial Association. Blood is not exactly something you plan to give for Christmas, but it is a year-round gift of life for those in need of it—and there's absolutely no cost attached to the giving. Please support the Blood Mobile if you are physically fit and wish to aid less fortunate human beings.

U. S. Population At 185 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—The population of the United States will reach 185 million sometime this week, marking an increase of five million since last year's census.

While the exact moment won't be known, the event will be celebrated at a ceremony in the commerce Department lobby at about 3 p.m. EST Thursday.

At that time the 185-million figure will turn up there on the national "census clock" which produces minute-by-minute estimates of population growth.

UL Church Women Plan Meet Dec. 7

THE THIRD annual ingathering of Easton District United Lutheran Church Women will be held on Thursday, Dec. 7, at 1:30 p.m. in Zion Lutheran Church, 5th and Church Sts., Easton.

Major League Teams Draft 35 Players

Raid On Minors Cost $680,000; Yank, Brave Systems Hit Hard

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The talent-hungry major leagues drafted 35 minor league baseball players Monday for a record outlay of $680,000 in the annual raid on their rivals' farm systems.

The Los Angeles Angels, Minnesota Twins and Cleveland Indians each took four men and Kansas City, Baltimore, Washington and the Chicago White Sox each drafted three.

Hardest hit were the sprawling farm systems of the New York Yankees and Milwaukee Braves, each of whom lost six players. The San Francisco Giants' farms were clipped for four players.

The selections ranged from such familiar names as veteran outfielder Gino Cimoli, taken by Kansas City, to an unknown infield-outfielder Steven Selsky, whose only pro experience has been in an instructional league. The White Sox picked Selsky from the Los Angeles Dodgers' Spokane list.

First Pick

Washington had the No. 1 pick and took shortstop Ken Hamlin as expected. The 26-year-old Hamlin cost only $25,000 this year, a sharp mark down from the $75,000 the Angels had to pay for him last year in the expansion draft.

Of the 35 players selected, 20 were veterans at $25,000 each, and were first-year men who started playing pro ball in 1961. The freshmen cost only $12,000 each. Last year the majors drafted 23 for $497,000, and only six of them were first-year men.

The idea of the first-year draft is to keep the rich clubs from hoarding talent but most of them protect their top prospects by advancing them to a big league roster, immune from the draft.

After Washington took Hamlin to fill the vacancy created by the Army call of Bob Johnson and the sale of Coot Veal, the Philadelphia Phillies grabbed Billy Consolo, former Boston Red Sox $60,000 bonus baby. Consolo, now 27, hit .283 last year at Vancouver, a Milwaukee farm.

The 32-year-old Cimoli, a major leaguer since 1956, played with Pittsburgh and Milwaukee last season, but was sent to Vancouver in October.

Minnesota took third baseman George Banks from the Yankee chain after he hit .296 with 30 home runs at their Binghamton, N.Y., farm. The Twins also drafted John Swango, former Baltimore bonus pitcher from the Yankee's Richmond farm. Pitcher Georges Maranda, who had a 10-4 record at Tacoma and infielder Johnny Goryl, ex-Cub who hit .280 at Omaha, also went to the Twins.

Angels Connect

The Angels snapped up third baseman Marlan Coughtry, a .296 hitter at Seattle; infielder-outfielder Felix Torres, who drove in 97 runs for Buffalo, and Bob Belinsky, a left-handed pitcher with a 9-10 record at Little Rock.

Moe Drabowsky, a rookie whiz with the Cubs in 1957 was Cincinnati's only draft. Baltimore grabbed Billy Short, from the Yanks at Richmond, where he had a 1-1 record after undergoing an arm operation. The Orioles also took veteran Ossie Virgil for infield insurance.

Among Cleveland's four draftees was ex-White Sox pitcher Don Rudolph, an 18-9 winner at Indianapolis. St. Louis took only right-handed pitcher John Anderson, 14-9 at Rochester.

Two Veterans

Of the two new clubs in the National League, The Houston Colts and New York Mets, each was allowed to take two veterans at $25,000 each after the other clubs had finished. The colts took lefthanded pitcher Dean Stone, formerly with Washington, and outfielder Johnny Weekly from the Giants' organization. President George Weiss of the Mets selected two right-handed pitchers Charles Bob Moorhead from Indianapolis and Aubrey Gatewood from Dallas. Gatewood like Hamlin was acquired by the Angels last year in the expansion draft .....

Of the 15 first-year players, the boy with the most impressive record was pitcher James Hannan, who had a 17-7 mark at Olean, N.Y., in class D, and struck out 254 in 196 innings. He went to Washington. The highest first year Bob Chance, acquired by Cleveland after he hit .371 at El Paso, Tex., in class D.

Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh and the Yankees did not draft any players.

SENATORS' CHOICE — Ken Hamlin, 25-year-old Toronto shortstop, was picked by the Washington Senators in the annual major league draft of minor league players.

White Sox Trade Minoso To Cards

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla .(AP)—The Chicago White Sox traded outfielder Minnie Minoso to the St. Louis Cardinals for outfielder-first baseman Joe Cunningham Monday night.

Minoso, who will be 39 on Wednesday, hit .280 for the White Sox in 152 games last season, his 12th in the majors. He had 14 home runs and 82 runs batted in.

Cunningham, 30, hit .286 in 113 games with St. Louis, his seventh with the club. He had 7 home runs and 40 RBI.

"We can play Cunningham either at first base or in the out field," said Manager Al Lope of the White Sox. This obviously referred to the possibility that the White Sox might trade first baseman Roy Sievers. The Boston Red Sox reportedly are interested in obtaining the power-hitting Sievers. The White Sox are understood to be asking third baseman Frank Malzone in return.

"We needed some experience and some more hitting in the outfielders haven't been coming field," Cardinals Manager Johnny Keane said. "Our young outalong as rapidly as we anticipated."

"We added power without giving up a pitcher," said Wally Shannon, the Cards' farm director.

Minoso, whose full name is Saturnino Orestes Arrieta Minoso, will be ending his second tour with the White Sox. He was traded by the Cleveland Indians to Chicago in April of 1951, and returned to the Indians after the 1957 season. Cleveland traded him back to Chicago after the 1959 season. The right-handed batter, one of the top performers in the AL from the start of his career, has a lifetime batting average of .306. Last season, he hit under .300 for the first time since 1955. His high marks were .326 with the Indians briefly and the White Sox the rest of the season in 1951, and .320 with 116 RBI for the White Sox in 1954.

Cunningham, a left-handed batter, has a .304 lifetime average in the majors—all with St. Louis. He became a regular with the Cards in 1957 and in 1959 challenged for the NL batting leadership with a .345 average.

He was used both in the outfield and at first base by St. Louis. He throws as well as bats left-handed.

The deal, announced jointly by the two clubs, was the third made during the baseball meetings which opened here Sunday. Sunday night, Boston traded shortstop Don Buddin to the new Houston National League team for Eddie Bressoud, former Giants' shortstop. Earlier Monday, the Chicago Cubs swapped infielder Jerry Kindall to Cleveland for right-hander Bobby Locke.

Keane later said he planned to play Minoso in left field and shift Stan Musial to right with Curt Flood playing center.

"When the older fellows (Musial and Minoso need some rest." he said, "then we'll go with Carl Warwick and Charlie James, the youngsters."

Indians, Bosox Complete Deals

TAMAPA, Fla. (AP)—The Boston Red Sox have traded shortstop Don Buddin to the new Houston Colts for shortstop Eddie Bressoud, the Associated Press learned Sunday night.

The deal, first at the major league meetings which began here Sunday, was scheduled to be announced by the clubs later.

Bressoud, 29, was the first player picked by the Colts in the special draft conducted after the World Series to stock the National League's two new clubs. He was obtained for $75,000 from the San Francisco Giants.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians Monday traded pitcher Bobby Locke to the Chicago Cubs for infielder Jerry Kindall.

It was the second inter-league trade of the winter meetings, which opened here Sunday. The other saw Houston send shortstop Eddie Bressoud to Boston for Don Buddin, also a shortstop.

Pleads Guilty On 2 Charges In Hoop Fix

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Green, an associate of convicted football game fixer Aaron Wagman, pleaded guilty in general sessions Monday of bribing a basketball player to shave points.

Green, 37, could be sentenced to from one to 10 years and fined up to $10,000 on each of two counts to which he pleaded guilty. He is to be sentenced Jan. 3.

Indicted with Green was Wagman, 29, who is charged with 37 counts of bribery and one of conspiracy.

Wagman's case was adjourned until Wednesday after his attorney said he had asked the district attorney for a bill of particulars which was to be turned over before Wednesday.

Green pleaded guilty to bribing Fred Portnoy, 19, a forward for Columbia University during the 1960-61 season. Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said at the time of Green's arrest last March that the forward had agreed to shave points in four games and allegedly received $1,140.

Hogan said Portnoy shaved points in the Columbia-Rutgers game Dec. 13, which Columbia lost 75-62.

The second count to which Green pleaded guilty involved the Columbia-Army game Jan. 21. Portnoy was injured early in that game, Hogan said, and did not receive any payoff.

Hogan said Portnoy also agreed to shave points in the Columbia-Pennsylvania game Jan. 7 and the Columbia-Colgate game Jan. 18. Green reneged and did not pay on those games, Hogan added.

Braves Relocate Fla. 'Quarters

MILWAUKEE (AP)—In an apparent anti-segregation move, the Milwaukee Braves Monday moved headquarters for their Bradenton, Fla., training camp to a motel outside the city. In past years, the club has maintained headquarters within Bradenton. Negro players were forced to live and eat in private homes away from teammates.

Baseball Boom

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese professional baseball attendance soared in 1961 to record figures after declining the year before.

The total attendance for the two 6-team leagues was 8,718,000, up 600,000 over 1960. That year had showed a 400,000 drop from 1959. Previously, every season from 1951 set a new attendance mark.

Bowl Selections Now Almost Complete

Penn State, Georgia Tech In Gator Bowl On Dec. 30

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Penn State, Kansas, Miami of Florida and Utah State joined the nation's football "bowlers" Monday as the ranks continued to close for the post-season college games.

Penn State (7-3) after rejecting a bid to the Gotham Bowl, accepted an invitation Monday night to play Georgie Tech (6-3) in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonvill,e Fla., on Dec. 30.

Kansas, which finished with a 6-3-1 record after losing two of its first three games, accepted an invitation to play in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston Dec. 16.

Miami of Florida, which has a 6-3 record with a game with Florida remaining, will play previously named Syracuse (7–3) in the Liberty Bowl at Philadelphia Dec. 16.

Kansas' opponent in the Bluebonnet is expected to be the host Rice Owls, in whose stadium the game is played. Rice will accept if it defeats Baylor next Saturday.

The Gotham Bowl, which died aborning last year when it could not line up two "suitable" teams, has invited Auburn of the Southeastern Conference to play Utah State. Auburn's decision is expected to be announced Tuesday.

Auburn has a 6-3 record and plays top-ranked unbeaten Alabama in its final regular season game Saturday.

In another bowl development, Jackson (Miss.) State was chosen to play host to Florida A&M in the Orange Blossom classic for the mythical national Negro championship at Miami Dec. 9.

here's the way the bowl picture looks now:

Dec. 9

Gotham Bowl at New York — Utah State (9-0-1) definite. Auburn (6-3) invited.

Galen Hall Sets Passing Record

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —Quarterback Galen Hall, passing sensation of Penn State's 47-26 victory over Pitt Saturday, set a new record for his team.

A check of the records Monday showed that Hall's single game feat of completing 11 of 14 passing attempts for a gain of 256 yards betiered a Penn State mark which had stood for eight years.

The previous record was set by Tony Rados of Steelton, Pa., in a 20-19 loss to West Virginia University. Rados' passing in that game was credited with gaining 247 yards.

Idle Tide (9-0) Loses Ground

Alabama Holds Slim Lead Over Ohio State For First

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unbeaten and untied Alabama held a slim lead over once-tied Ohio State Tuesday in the next-to-last Associated Press poll to determine the national college football champions.

The Crimson Tide, idle last week while preparing for a final date with Auburn Saturday, lost considerable ground to the Big Ten Buckeyes, who were impressive in a 50-20 triumph over Michigan.

The final poll, determining the nation's No. 1 team, is scheduled next week. Alabama, with nine straight victories and an eye on the Sugar Bowl, must turn back a traditional rival in Auburn at Birmingham, Ala. Ohio State has closed its regular season with an 8-0-1 mark and apparently will play UCLA in the Rose Bowl.

Louisiana State, Texas and Mississippi moved up a notch into the Nos. 3, and 5 positions with the defeat of previously third-ranked Minnesota. Minnesota, which lost to Wisconsin 23-21, dropped from third to seventh.

Colorado, the Big Elght champion headed for the Orange Bowl against Louisiana State, took over the No. 6 spot, moving up a single rung. Michigan State, Arkansas and Missouri completed the top ten in the 8th, 9th and 10th positions.

In contrast to last week when Alabama snared 39 first place votes to six for Ohio State, the Tide, drew only 26 No. 1 nominations in the latest balloting compared with 21 for Ohio State. Louisiana State and Mississippi each got one of the remaining votes from the panel of 49 sports writers and broadcasters.

On the basis of 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, etc., Alabama collected a total of 459 points. Ohio State was only seven behind with 452:—

The only newcomer to the rankings is Missouri, which knocked Kansas out of the No. 10 spot by winning their game 10-7.

LSU clobbered Tulane 620-0, Texas snapped back with a 25-0 victory over Texas A & M and Mississippi, Texas' likely opponent in the Cotton Bowl, was idle while pointing to its final game with Mississippi State.

Colorado whipped Iowa State 34-0. Michigan State closed its campaign with a 34-7 triumph over Illinois. Arkansas, slated to meet Alabama in the Sugar Bowl, downed Texas Tech 28-0.

The top ten, with first place votes and season records in parentheses (points on a 10-9-8 etc. basis):

	Pts.
1. Alabama (26) (9-0)	459
2. Ohio State (21) (8-0-1)	452
3. Louisiana State (1) (9-1)	366
4. Texas (9-1)	354
5. Mississippi (1) (8-1)	272
6. Colorado (8-1)	169
7. Minnesota (7-2)	168
8. Michigan State (7-2)	139
9. Arkansas (8-2)	131
10. Missouri (7-2-1)	31

Other teams receiving votes: Penn State, Rutgers, Wisconsin, UCLA, Utah State, Arizona, Purdue, Rice, Georgia Tech, Michigan, Duke, Iowa, Syracuse, Wyoming, Kansas.

PIAA Makes Three Rule Changes In Basketball

By FRED WALTERS

HARRISBURG (AP) — Three important rules changes have been made in the book for the 1961-62 PIAA basketball season.

One change eliminates free throws for common fouls committed by the offensive team.

In such cases, the defensive team will be awarded the ball out of bounds. The foul will be charged against the player committing it, even though no free throw is awarded.

(A common foul is one that is "neither flagrant nor intentional;" is not committed against a player in the act of shooting, and is not part of a double or multiple foul).

A second change eliminates "sudden death" extra periods to decide ties. The new rule provides that as many three-minute extra periods as are necessary shall be played to decide games tied at the end of regulation time.

Third Change

The third change permits coaches or any team followed to signal or otherwise communicate ith their team on the floor prohibition against sideline coaching has been found nearly impossible to enforce.

PIAA officials will be watching the outcome of this change with interest.

The scholastic association also now is polling its member schools —all but the private and parochial schools and few public schools—on a proposed change in the constitution that would include tournaments within the 22-game limit set on the basketball season.

This limit would not apply to the post-season PIAA playoffs.

Results of the poll probably won't be known until early next year.

Only three games remain to close the books on the 1961 football season.

This Thursday, Southern and Frankford play for the Philadelphia Pubic League championship. That winner will meet Monsignor Bonner on Dec. 9 for the city title. Monsignor Bonner defeated LaSalle last Saturday for the Catholic League crown.

This Saturday, Old Forge and Coal Twp. will meet for the East Penn Conference championship. Old Forge won the Northern Division title and Coal Twp. the Southern.

The guess here is that Southern will win the public league playoff in Philadelphia but lose to Bonner and that Coal Twp. will beat Old Forge for the East Penn championship.

Old Forge, going into its big game with Coal Twp., has won seven and tied one (7-7 with Allentown Allen). Coal Twp.'s only loss in 11 tries was 27-12 at the hands of Sunbury.

Stephens, Bell And Ferguson On All-Big 10

CHICAGO (AP)—Fullback Bob Ferguson of Ohio State, quarterback Sandy Stephens and tackle Bobby Bell of Minnesota were unanimous choices of the 1961 All-Big Ten football team named by The Associated Press Monday.

Ferguson, who led the Buckeyes to the Big Ten championship, was the only repeater from last year when he gained All-America honors.

The team, featuring balance and speed, was made up of two players each from Ohio State, Minnesota, Purdue and Michigan State. Wisconsin, Michigan and Northwestern each landed one berth while Iowa, Indiana and Illinois were shut out.

Bernie McRae of Michigan and George Saimes of Michigan State were the other backfield members. Aside from Bell, the line included ends Pat Richter of Wisconsin and Jack Elwell of Purdue, tackle Dave Behrman of Michigan State, guards Mike Ingram of Ohio State and Stan Sczurek of Purdue and center Larry Onesti of Northwestern.

Texas Coach Picks Ol' Miss

NEW YORK (AP) — Darrell Royal, youthful University of Texas football coach, said Monday he would be greatly surprised if Mississippi is not picked as the Longhorns' Cotton Bowl football opponent.

"We expect to be facing Ole Miss in Dallas on Jan. 1, and it isn't a pleasant thought," he added in an appearance at the New York Football writers' weekly luncheon.

Area Bowling Highlights

Patterson-Kelley

Sub Al Luckey, bowling reluctantly because of assorted aches and pains, demolished the season high triple with a 236-201—622, enabling the Welders to share a hard-fought 3 to 1 contest with Shop. Bill Hay's 224-579 and Vince Shafer's 535 kept the losers in contention.

Front-running Material Control absorbed its second 3 to 1 trouncing in three weeks as a patchwork Outside Gang, with three subs bowling, belted its season's high. Sub Paul Voepel's 520 topped two other 500's for the Gang, while Adolph Oltmann's 538 was the whole story for the leaders.

The Office rolled a steady match behind sub Jim Owens' 535 to blank a light-hitting Engineers five and move into fourth. Capt. Tom Conway's 476 led the losers.

Surviving a four-pin squeaker in the opener, Test Floor went on to whitewash the stubborn Draftsmen and pulled into a tie for the lead, fueled by Frank McNamara's stout 204-544 and Harry Shields' 509.

Luckey "owned" lane three, belting ten straight and twelve for the night on that side.

Colonial Pocono Mts. League

Gray Chevrolet blanked Metzgars Market 4 to 0. John Gerenser with 200-570 was high for Grays and for Metzgar's, Randy Morris with 211-538.

With Carl Kohl's 211-570 leading the way Poc. Top Hat stopped Colonial Lanes 4 to 0. R. Shupp's 211-528 was high for the losers.

E. D. Huffman's also won a 4 to 0 match from Brite Cleaners. John Sadowski with 209-605 was high for the winners and J. Horn with 221-559 for the losers.

Nights won its match with Bush Well Drilling by a 3 to 1 score. N. Deubler's 526 match was high in this contest.

Marshalls Creek Kennels upset first place Rhineland Inn by a 3 to 1 count. F. Marshs' 520 match was high for the victors and Joe Hodgsons' 213-565 for the losers.

In a close scoring match Monroe Music stopped Sinclair Oil's 16 game wining streak as they won 3 to 1. Steve Balcik with 235-562 was high scorer for the winners and Ollie Weber's 202-543 for the losers.

The Daily Record Classic

Geo. N. Kemp Post #346 met Patterson-Kelley Co. on the Colonial Lanes where it dropped a 3 to 1 decision. K. Fetherman 197-556 was high for the Post. C. Treible was high for Patterson-Ktlley with a 194-543.

At Harmon Recreation, Lake House locked horns with Twin City Television, where it dropped a 3 to 1 decision. H. Strunk with a 185-527 was high for Lake House. F. Belli's 192-561 was high for Twin City.

Rhineland Inn met Barrett Bowling Center at the Barrett Lanes where it won 3½ to ½. J. Schoch threw the best match for the night with a 226-623 for Rhineland Inn. L. Transue with a 192-556 was high for Barrett.

In the final match of the evening Malf-Moon Tavern met Hobby House on the Legion Lanes. Not a man for Half-Moon hit the 500 bracket. High for Hobby House was R. Warner with a 191-533.

Bushkill League

BRANTLEY Whittaker Jr. paced Timothy Lake Estates to a 3-1 decision over Asher Whittaker. Brantley hit for 181 and 511 and best for the Painters was Herb Brauer with 202 and 469. In spite of a 209 and 555 by Lou Lee for Turn's General Store they lost 3-1 to Bushkill Falls. High man for the Falls was Lawrence Dickison with 482. Echo Lake Farms Hotel split 2-2 with Rick DePue. Rick DePue was high man with 494.

Commercial "B" League

Frank's Barber Shop swept 4 points from Schaefer Beer and in the process of so doing set league single at 1013 and triple at 2850. Their big man was Wally Straub with 234 and 610 and best for Schaefer's was Ernie Martz with 232 and 613. Swisher Rhinegold lost 4-0 to Babe's Service Station. The key man for Babe's was Jake Nittel with 234 and 642. Russ Dennis Jr., with 211 and 579, led L. and B. Appliances to a 3-1 win over Eagles "B." Jim Harmon Jr. was high for the latter with 225 and 625.

Stock Dividends

By William A. Doyle

Q. I have owned some Baltimore & Ohio Railroad preferred stock for some time. I bought an additional 25 shares on Aug. 8. On Sept. 19 I received a check for the dividend on my old stock. But I did not get the dividend on my new shares.

The dividend ($1 a share) was payable to stockholders of record Aug. 18. Because I bought the 25 additional shares on Aug. 8, I feel I am entitled to the dividend paid on those shares. Am I right? Where is my other $25?

A. Yes, you are right. You had better ask your broker where that $25 is. And, with the recent developments in B&O, you are probably more unhappy now than you were when you wrote your letter to this column.

The dividend on B&O preferred stock was payable to stockholders of record at the close of business Aug. 18. Because of the four-day delivery of stocks in regular way trading, this stock went "ex-dividend" at the opening of business Aug. 15.

At that time, the value of the dividend ($1) was automatically deducted from the market price of the stock. People who bought the stock on or after Aug. 15 were not entitled to the dividend.

But you bought it Aug. 8. So, you're entitled to the dividend.

Now, there is a strong possibility that the paperwork necessary to get you registered on the books of the company as the owner of those 25 shares was not completed in time.

If that's the case, your broker should have collected the dividend on those 25 shares—from the person who sold the stock you bougnt. Your broker should, of course, turn that dividtnd over to you.

One more $1 a share dividend on B&O preferred stock is scheduled for this year. It will be payable Dec. 10, to holders of record Nov. 17. But, after that, you are in for a barren dividend period.

The B&O management recently announced that the dividends on both the preferred and common stocks will be omitted next year. And the railroads won't even be able to pay the interest on its 4½ percent convertible income bonds.

This bad news doesn't come as a big shock. The B&O has had a bad year. It is estimated that 1961 operations will result in a loss of betwen $25 million and $30 million.

Q. I sold 10 shares of stock in a Canadian company, which I bought some time ago. A local brokerage house handled the sale transaction, on the Toronto Stock Exchange. The check I received was less than the sale price. Yes, I realize there were commissions and other charges. But my check was for less than the sale price, minus those charges. Why should this be?

A. Because the Canadian dollar is now "at a discount" to the American dollar. In other words, the American dollar is worth more than the Canadian dollar, in foreign exchange. As I write this, you can get one Canadian dollar by putting up only 96.41 cents in U.S. money.

Trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange is done in Canadian currency—naturally.

If you sell 10 shares of stock on a stock exchange in Canada, at $10 a share, the sale price will be $100—Canadian.

Then, when those 100 Canadian dollars are exchanged for American currency, you'll get $96.41 in U.S. money—less commissions, etc.

Conversely, if you buy 10 shares of stock on a stock exchange in Canada, at $10 a share, the cost price will be $100—Canadian. The cost to you will be $96.41 in U.S. money—plus commissions, etc.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Says Tariff Question Can Be Solved

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional economic consultant suggested yesterday tariffs and roadblocks to free trade can be lowered without "pouring out the baby with the bathwater."

Dr. Otto R. Reischer, a Washington trade specialist with an academic background, said the answer is trade adjustment. This is a broad term that involves government financial help to industries badly hurt by foreign imports plus aid to one-industry communities and displaced workers so they can adjust to such situations.

Reischer's report was published by the Foreign Economic Policy subcommittee of the Joint Econmic Committee. The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., a leading reciprocal trade advocate.

The report seemed to dovetail with administration plans to push for a broad lowering of trade barriers.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, speaking with presidential approval recently proposed a repudiation of protectionism. His proposal included empowering the federal government to help shift to other areas of production those industries "which cannot stand up to foreign competition."

The Reischer report is the latest in a long line of attempts to settle this knotty and emotional problem, which has been heightened in recent years by establishment of the European Common Market and other highly successful reciprocal trade agreements in Western Europe.

N'fld Post Office Is Lauded

NEWFOUNDLAND — Commendation for its promotion and sale of savings stamps during the past year has been received by Postmaster C. L. Beesecker, from William H. Neal, national director of the U. S. Savings Bond Program.

"In this 20th anniversary year of the United States savings bond program," the letter read, "Americans in all walks of life, in communities throughout the country, own more than $44 billion in Series E and H savings bonds—an all time record. You have had a real share in this success, and we in the Treasury are grateful for your efforts over the years to promote the sale of savings bonds and stamps in behalf of your country.

"In these critical times, the sale affords young and old alike an opportunity to help their country as they help themselves. To the extent that we can increase our sales, to the same txtent do we strengthen the foundations of our national economy, upon which rests our efforts to preserve the peace and promote the general welfare of all people.

"During the school year your help is especially needed to sponsor and service the school savings programs in your area. In the country as a whole, some six million students are now attending schools where the stamp plan is in operation. We would like to see this number increased substantially during the coming year."

Postmaster Beesecker reports that students of Southern Wayne Joint School, through the school savings program, have purchased approximately $3,000 in Savings Stamps.

Churchmen Praise Unity; Urge Caution

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A Roman Catholic, a Southern Baptist and the primate of the Church of England applauded the worldwide quest for Christmas unity yesterday, but also sounded notes of caution.

Beware of those who say that "We need just a few simple facts and principles in order to get unity," the Most Rev. Arthur M. Ramsey, archbishop of Canterbury told the World Council of Churches general assembly.

"It is useless to think that we can look for unity in Christ's name unless we are looking no less for holiness in His obedience and for the realization of the truth which He has revealed."

Representatives of the widest variety of church bodies ever assembled in Christian history went through the sixth day of their three-week conclave.

In the first appraisal from five Vatican-named Roman Catholic observers, the Rev. Edward Duff, St. Louis Jesuit said, in an interview: "It is a providential thing—this vast confrontation."

"It is an astonishing thing," he added. "These people really want to stay together. It is not just rhetoric. The earnestness of their work and prayer is very inspiring."

As to whether the movement will ultimately heal the rifts in fragmented Christendom, he said: "That is the hope. How it will come out God has not told me."

Southern Baptist evangelist Billy Graham is preparing to leave on Sunday after sitting in on the sessions for a week.

He said: "It has been to me an illuminating experience. To see leaders from nearly every country of the world witnessing, debating and praying together is unforgettable."

Dear Abby

Happy New Year!

DEAR ABBY: I am the luckiest woman alive 364 nights of the year, but on New Year's Eve I wish I were dead!

We always go to the New Year's party at our club, and this is the one night my husband really lets all the bars down. He gets himself loaded, and makes a fool of himself kissing all the women. He tells me he loves only me, that it doesn't mean anything, but I get so jealous and mad I could choke him. What shoud I do this year? Should I tell him I can't take it any more and send him alone? I can't go through another New Year's Eve like the last five.

HAD IT

Dear Had It: Level with your husband. Tell him you are going to invite a few couples in for a private New Year's Eve party. Then do it.

* * *

Dear Abby: Ever since I started going with this girl I have had a lot of "friendly criticism" from her mother. I am not a high school sophomore. I am a second year Law Schol student. I got the heat immediately on the way I dressed. I wanted a sports car, but her mother said nix on that. I have always worn a crew cut, and now her mother insists that I let my hair grow. I am crazy about this girl, but she is a mamma's girl and mamma can do no wrong. Is this deal healthy for me?

R. M. U. C.

Dear R. M. U. C.: Like Asiatic flu. If you let your hair grow, it will be only to cover the holes in your head. Give the girl back to her mother.

* * *

Dear Abby: I have a problem concerning my 15-year-old daughter. She is attractive, well-developed and popular. She does well in school, and we have never had any trouble disciplining her. My problem concerns her modesty. She runs around the house with next to nothing on. She has answered the front door in her bra and slip, and says there is nothing wrong with it. The other night, while my husband, our son (17) and I were watching TV in the living room, our daughter came in, complained of the heat, and proceeded to take her skirt and blouse off. My husband and I are concerned, but she won't listen to us. Perhaps you can get through to her.

CONCERNED

Dear Concerned: Since your daughter actually sees nothing wrong with running around with "next to nothing" on, you can keep her properly covered by demanding it. She may obey to please you but, unless she understands why it is important to have a sense of modesty about her body, you are fighting a losing battle, mother. A frank mother and daughter talk is long overdue.

* * *

Everybody's got a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of this paper.

* * *

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50c to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Interview To Be Made Public

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House sources said today they expect President Kennedy's private interview with Soviet Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law to be published within the next 48 hours.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger would say only that the text of the interview will be made public here after it has been published in the Soviet government paper Izvestia in Moscow.

The interview is being cabled to Moscow by Aleksei Adzhubei, Izvestia editor and son-in-law of the Soviet premier, who interviewed Kennedy in his summer home at Hyannis Port, Mass., last Saturday.

An Invitation and a Challenge

Whatever car, at any price, you're looking at, look at Lark, too. It's the most satisfying basic value of all. Discover why. For example:

RAMBLER? Measure The Lark 4-door against the comparable Rambler Classic 4-door Sedan and discover Lark gives you a 5" longer wheelbase, more head and leg room, choice of a 6 or V-8 instead of only a 6, a 112 to 225 horsepower range rather than 127 to a top of 138. Plus padded instrument panel at no extra charge. A sample of Lark's many advantages over Rambler at lower prices for comparable models.

TEMPEST? Why settle for a 4-cylinder Tempest engine or a V-8 with up to 185 hp when Lark gives you a choice of 6 or V-8, with high gas economy and horsepower up to 225? Why be content with Tempest's 1½" less headroom, 5¼" less rear legroom in the 4-door sedan? Just a sample of The Lark's big lead over the Tempest. (Lark prices start $250 less.)

FALCON? Check the Falcon vs. The Lark and you'll find Falcon's wheelbase is 3½" shorter, the car narrower, with less headroom, legroom, hiproom. Falcon has only 85 to 101 hp instead of Lark's 112 to 225; Falcon doesn't offer 3-speed automatic transmission or dual headlights. Just a sample of The Lark's superiority over the Falcon. (Lark prices start $50 less.)

CORVAIR? Why step down into Corvair's deep floor wells when The Lark has high floors flush with doorsill, up to 8 inches more legroom; bigger, wider doors to step through. Corvair's extra-price 102 hp engine is smaller than Lark's smallest 112 hp; and Corvair can't offer Lark's power options and 3-speed automatic transmission at any price. A sample of how Lark outvalues Corvair. (Lark prices start at $57 lower.)

COMET? What use is Comet's 1" longer wheelbase, nearly 7" longer length, when Lark gives you more room in all interior dimensions—3¾" in rear 4-door sedan legroom alone. Lark offers up to 100% more hp; giant bonded brakes, full 15" wheels (vs. Comet's 13"), full power options Comet can't. Just a sample of Lark's convincing superiority over Comet. (Lark prices begin $149 less.)

F-85? Why pay higher prices for F-85 when you'll find 1" extra front and rear hiproom and extra legroom both front and rear in The Lark—plus easy, big-door entry with no step-down well. 22% more top horsepower available, too, and much more braking area. Just a sample of the way Lark outdistances F-85. (Lark V-8 prices begin $333 lower.)

BUICK SPECIAL? Why pay a premium for the Buick Special when a Lark is bigger in so many ways—in rear legroom (5" more), in braking power (146 or 172 sq. in. vs. 123 sq. in.), in optional available top horsepower (225 vs. 185), in standard wheel size (15" vs. 13"). Just a sample of the many big ways Lark's a better buy. (Lark prices start $369 lower.)

CHEVY II? Why compromise with a Chevy II when Lark offers you the choice of a 6 or V-8 engine instead of a 4 or 6, more headroom, hiproom and legroom; and the riding comfort of multi-leaf springs plus full coil spring seats unavailable in the Chevy II. Just some examples of how The Lark outvalues the Chevy II. (Lark prices start $68 below the 4-cylinder Chevy II models, $128 below the Six.)

FORD? Why buy the new Fairlane 500 that's 9" longer than a Lark, when it's so much harder to park; has less hiproom, headroom and 2½" less rear legroom; smaller 13" wheels; a smaller 6-cylinder engine, a smaller 8; smaller choice of models and options. Just a limited list of the ways Lark beats the Fairlane 500. (Lark prices start $219 under the Fairlane.)

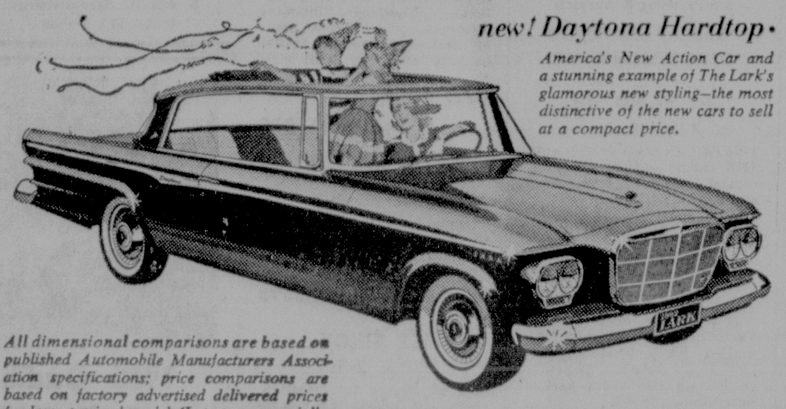

VALIANT? Why let Valiant's slightly lower base price deprive you of hundreds of dollars in additional car value you get in The Lark? Compare Lark's 112 to 225 hp range to Valiant's 101 to 145; Lark's 113 in. wheelbase to Valiant's 106.5; Lark's bigger 15" wheels; Lark's many inches of added room in every interior dimension. Lark's higher, wider doors, flush floors, and safety padding are yours at no additional cost. Just a sample of Lark's many big advantages over Valiant.
